WE NOMINATE

William A. Hall, an extremely gifted physician and a practicing humanist, who over the past two years has made a major contribution to the advancement of the cause of peace in South Vietnam without any though of whether or not he was representing either the blandishments of the conservative Right or the emotionalism of the often shrill Left. For the past two summers this 46-year old (about-to-be 47) Princetonian, a resident of the Princeton Community since 1967, can say, and without fear of contradiction: "Without the assistance of the American military hospitals, the civilian medical effort in South Vietnam would completely collapse."

A confirmed pacifist, although a World War II naval officer in the Southeastern Asia Theater, Hall, Princeton University's Director of Athletic Medicine, is one of the handful of New Jersey physicians participating in an under-publicized program, Volunteer Physicians for Vietnam, financed by American taxpayers through the Department of State and operated under the auspices of the American Medical Association. He is across the nation one of only some 650 physicians (only two or three from doctor-happy prosperous New Jersey) willing to volunteer for 2-month tours of volunteer service in South Vietnam's overextended and woefully undermanned medical establishmen.

Hall's initial decision to "summer in Vietnam" was essentially a family matter. He, wife Ellen, son Britt and daughter Jan agreed, even though they all knew that his work would only be like "a drop of water in an ocean." In 1968 he went on to Pleiku, one of two provincial hospitals, where in South Vietnam's central highlands "the building has no electric lights, no running water, one toilet that works, no sewerage, cooking done outside over open fires, incredible insect pests, crumbling stucco walls mixed with spit on the floor, and several patients to a sheetless bed without pillow cases.

This past summer, back for his second tour in South Vietnam, the reticent Hall, associated with one of that tortured nation's outstanding medical installations, Quinhon's Holy Family Hospital, where civilian war-related injuries were fewer, found ground for hope. In spite of his instincts for pessimism, he found that Vietnamese medical facilities are slowly approaching those offered by any middle-class American community hospital and that the operating room is becoming active almost around the clock with most of the surgery being performed by U.S. military doctors on a voluntary basis in an atmosphere of growing mutual trust.

Following in the footsteps of Harry R. McPhee and Charles W. Franklin as Princeton University's Team Physician, Hall, a cum laude member of the Harvard Class of 1950 and a graduate alumnus of both the University of Pennsylvania and Harvard, was called to Princeton in the summer of 1967 following three years as Director of Health Services at the University of Florida. His background, including four years of active duty with the U. S. Navy in World War II, stretches back to 1963-64 when — almost in anticipation of his Princeton assignment — he was Director of the Wellesley College Health Services.

For his leadership in a field in which the tradition of volunteer leadership has been sadly sagging; for his contributions in the sphere of athletic medicine; for facing overwhelming challenges in a land of war, starvation, disease and death; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee as

"AFFLUENT POLITICS"

Former Resident Looks Back. Princeton's political season is now open. So far, its theme is "apathy" and candidates report more shrugs from the voters than hand shakes.

Drugs seem to be the one issue people are anxious — indeed panicky — about, but issues in Princeton was and wane. Traffic and parking are as bad as ever, housing is still scarce and high, the most pressing practical problem is probably trash disposal, but drugs are in" for 1970.

Some astringent commentary on the town's political ways appeared this week from a former resident, David Hapgood, writing in the October issue of "The Washington Monthly."

Mr. Hapgood and his wife lived in Princeton for several years during the 1960s and were very active in the community. In a review of the new book, "The Radical Suburb: Soundings in Changing American Character" by John B. Orr and F. Patrick Nicholson, Mr. Hapgood tells readers he "dabbled in suburban politics in the sixties," and then goes on to make his observations.

He never mentions Princeton by name, but he writes:

"It was a college town in the northeast corridor, population [illegible] 5,000 with an income far above the average and an extraordinary number of expansive people. Most of the natives belonged to a kind of bourgeois intelligentsia, endowed with both financial and diploma status, because they did not work with their hands. It was generally presumed that they worked with their heads.

"The town was also home to a black minority, about 10% and roughly the same number of Middle Americans. Both groups, but especially the blacks, were gradually being shoved out by class zoning.

"Local government was run from the top down, no worse than most places, by a cozy establishment that was neither imaginative nor consciously oppressive.

The opposition, such as it was, consisted largely of pragmatic liberals left over from the 1950s; they seldom won, but that didn't matter because they would rather write a good platform than be County Committeeman.

Enter the Newcomer. "In the early and mid 1960s, new people moved into local politics. They were white and over-30 tribal dropouts, almost always from the WASP and Jewish tribes — comfortable enough in financial career status so that neither of these pursuits took all their energy and I suspect bored.

"They took up the game of politics. In 1963, they went in heavily for civil rights, attacking the informal segregation that prevailed in the town's mores. Some went on to class issues, mostly concerned with housing.

About 1965, most of them switched to peace and later to ecology. They tended to switch in flocks, like birds respond[illegible] ing to a finely tuned [illegible] and a good number flew through several political causes and cleaned out the other end into encounter groups.

"Those already in local politics were puzzled and exasperated by the newcomers: they didn't play by the rules, their self interest was unclear (what did they really WANT?), they would swamp an issue and then abandon it.

"Blacks, especially, were first discomfited when the whites crawled all over them, vicariously experiencing black suffering, and then distressed though perhaps secretly relieved when the whites abandoned the cause.

Rational liberals disapproved of the newcomers' erratic performance and their emphasis on style over platform . . .

Progress? "Two local issues on which some measurable progress was made, were race and class. Many overt racial bars were dropped if only to reveal the deeper barriers below; at least a beginning was made toward reversing the public policy of class exclusion in housing.

"In fighting on these fronts, the overt appeal was to social justice . . . but a more potent, though less explicit appeal, was that of variety, the reason not to drive out the black and poor, the young and single, was that their presence made the town more interesting . . . different kinds of people to play with.

This appeal made no sense at all to the 'tribals,' who wanted a one-tribe community, nor to the academic liberals, whose ideal was to make everyone like themselves, nor yet to the presumed beneficiaries, whom it defined as a kind of field trip.

But the idea of variety drew

TOWER WINS APPROVAL

From Site Plan Board. The Tower that was, toppled like building blocks into three three story buildings on its Mt Lucas lot, has passed the Township's site plan review board.

Scheme B," as the office complex now seems to be called, will be up for hearing before the Princeton Regional Planning Board Wednesday November 4 at 8 p.m. The original October 20 hearing date has been cancelled.

Site plan reviewers cited the project's "complete conformance to the Township Zoning Ordinance" however, they did remind the planning board that a traffic study is now under way commissioned by the architect developers of the complex.

This study is necessary, site plans says, before a judgment is made about traffic problems.

The required amount of parking is about 30% more than this project needs, the site plan report says, and the board therefore suggests the possibility of reducing the ratio of floor area to parking space.

All parking lanes on the new plan are separated by 15 foot wide landscaped areas, and 6.26 acres of the 12.7 acre plot are used for parking, building and driveway. The architects are studying the possibility of a "water impounding facility" to control the rate of runoff.

Meeting on other matters Tuesday night, the Princeton Regional Planning Board approved site plans for a new two level school wing to be added to the front of the Princeton Jewish Center on Nassau Street.

Since the Center combines an elementary school with a religious building each of which has different parking requirements under the Borough zoning code, Center representatives were advised by the Planning Board to make the parking calculations in conference with the zoning officer before going to the Borough Zoning Board for the necessary conditional use permit.

Public Service received site plan approval for installation of two capacitor banks at the rear — that is, the south side — of the sub-station on Wiggins Street. The units will be 50 feet away from the new parking strip purchased recently by the Borough from Public Service.

A representative of Public Service said the capacitors will increase the voltage flow and are needed because of the increased demand for electricity in the area.

The old map, presented by Public Service, showed a coal storage building on Witherspoon and Wiggins.

"We've got a library there now," said the planning board.

a wide response in town, and proved to be the only plausible reason to dilute the sacred principle of suburban exclusiveness.

More In Politics. "Changes in public policy in that town, and they were considerable, seem less important in the long run than the change in the political process. The number of people actively engaged in politics was greatly increased and they brought new values into the system.

"These people discovered that, in an affluent community, considerable change is possible within the existing order; the same establishment still runs the town, but its style has changed. Freedom of behavior has expanded. More people in politics strengthens the community against reaction. When the backlash surfaced in the past year, with the usual outcry against peace, pot and permissiveness, the town's political fabric seemed strong enough to contain the attack.

A New Game. "All this took time, for the newcomers had to learn how to play the game.

"They learned that politics is irrational, that it deals in emotions and personalities, and that the game is played mainly on the bluff . . .

"Certainly in our town, the newcomers accomplished goals toward which rigid liberals had been striving for years without success. For a couple of decades, local liberals had been issuing ponderous reports advocating a municipal swimming pool. Nothing had happened. The newcomers got the pool in a few months by mobilizing 'tribals' who cared little about swimming but loved to harass the establishment, and by other tactics like absurd 'deadlines' for action, that seemed to embarrass the old liberals.

"But . . . there is no self interest to cement loyalty when the going gets dull. So participation, skillful as it is, comes in great intermittent gusts of cultural fashion. Some of us in suburban politics used to wish secretly that the troops wanted a garbage contract or a job in the County Courthouse so we could hold onto them for the next battle. Affluence has its drawbacks."

Mr. Hapgood concludes by suggesting that a suburbanite anxious about the future, may find this kind of activity "an experience better than any he has found yet — better even than 'Beaujolais Nouveau' or last week's encounter group."

Board Raises School Administrators' Salaries by $565,000

A $565,690 salary package and a one-year contract for the school system's 30 administrators were ratified by the Princeton Regional Board of Education at Tuesday's special meeting.

Mrs. Kathleen M. Edwards, Philip Cruikshank and Winthrop Pike abstained from voting on the contract. William W. Marvel joined them when they refused to vote on the salary increases.

A 5-4 vote passed the compromise proposal of the teachers' Princeton Regionni Education Association to include two Mondays in the five-afternoon drug study program for teachers, K-12. In favor were William Z. Abrams, Mrs. Evelyn Geddes, John H. Marks, board president; Dr. Robert Bierman and Henry J. Powser, with Mr. Cruikshank, Mrs. Edwards, Mr. Marvel and Mr. Pike dissenting.

"This means," Mr. Pike noted, "that the elementary and middle schools will be open only 10 full days and seven half-days in November."

Administrators. The legality of the contract negotiated with the Princeton Regional administrators Association and others not part of the association was approved by board attorney Thomas Cook, who put in writing to the board his reservations. Mr. Abrams said. He added that the salary demands were within the amount budgeted by last year's board. The contract is retroactive to July 1, 1970.

Objections to the list of salary increases (up $104,764 from 1969-70) were that "the raises are too high for one period" (Mrs. Edwards); "1.1% to 34% increases do not seem relevant to changes in duties," (Mr. Pike) and "I don't approve of ALL of them" (several dissenters.)

The following salary changes were released by Board President Marks: Superintendent of Schools Philip E. McPherson, from $25,250 to $29,000; Associate Superintendent Eugene Biringer, from $21,750 to $23,150.

School principals: Miss Florence Burke, high school, from $19,500 to $23,150; Murray Cohen, Johnson Park, from $19,000 to $20,280; Edith Francis, Riverside, starting salary $21,705; Thornton Grove, Middle School, $20,500 (no charge); L. Wesley Johnson, John Witherspoon, from $20,500 to $22,630; Lloyd Taylor, Littlebrook, from $19,000 to $21,705.

Also, Assistant principals, Philip Cobb, John Witherspoon, from $15,000 to $18,930; Joseph Drulis, PHS, from $15,500 to $18,930; J. Alfred Seitz, PHS, from $15,500 to $20,260; Virginia Fuell, Middle School, from $15,000 to $17,575; Robert Prettyman, Middle School $15,000 to $18,930;

Norman VanArdsalen, special assistant to the superintendent for physical education and health, from $14,900 to $18,230; Constance Vieland, coordinator of staff development, from $15,756 to $21,140; Dr. Charles Huchet, director of special services, from $19,000 to $21,895.

Also, William K. Evans, secretary business manager, from $17,750 to $20,500; Ronald E. Novak, manager of financial services, from $15,000 to $17,000; Gerald Moorcroft, office manager, finance, from $ 7,500 to $ 8,500; Barbara Hurley, director of food services, from $11,260 to $14,500;

William S. Karn, manager of facilities services, from $15,000 to $17,100; Ruth Koch, secretary to superintendent, from $7,800 to $9,000; Ralph Bennett, transportation supervisor, $9,- to $10,000.

Dorothea Lumnis, curriculum services coordinator, from $17,750 to $20,260; Jean McDonough, coordinator of media and library services, from $16,750 to $20,260; Sybil Parnes, PHS administrative assistant, from $10,210 to $16,210.

George Petrillo, PHS guidance director, from $14,250 to $20,260; William Rhodes, administrative assistant to superintendent, from $16,000 to $18,930; Frank Soda, dean of PHS faculty, from $15,500 to $18,810; Stanley Stein, coordinator of personnel services, from $16,000 to $16,210.

Dr. Bierman told the abstainers, "To abstain is to hedge the bet."

Dr. McPherson noted, "This is the end, now, this is the last contract. We have gone through a difficult period which was very much feared in other districts, that has ripped them apart. We have done this in a gentlemanly way.

"I'm fearful, from some of the attitudes around us, that we are on a collision course. . . . Many of us tried for performance salaries. . . . We all shared those experiences, and failed. . . . We had our chance."

Drug Ed. The drug education program drew a last comment from Mr. Abrams who had switched his vote. "I wanted an integrated program involving police, kids, parents, teachers and the community, but I realized there isn't enough time, in view of the state's deadline."

The schools will close at 1 p.m. on Monday, November 30, and December 7 for the drug study, which will also usurp the usual Wednesday Program on November 11, 18 and December 16.

To Mr. Cruikshank, who noted that the board had not received a minority report from the teachers, Mrs. Ruth Randall, PREA president, explained that the organization does contain differing views, although little dissent was seen in the vote taken. There were many proposals from the teachers. The final decision was taken by the representative group serving on the executive board, she said.

PHS Voting. Students at Princeton High School were scheduled to vote again on Wednesday on a method of electing six representative students to the planned Advisory Council. Tuesday's vote did not show a clear majority. Miss Florence Burke reported. The PHS faculty according to Frank Soda, dean, is also working on ways to achieve six councilmen who will fairly represent it.

Curt Bauman, Jim Laity and Peter Bruce of the student body questioned the school board concerning the issues that had come to light during the strike last spring, issues that had been tabled with the close of the term.

The Board wants to talk with a representative group, not a small minority," Dr. Marks said. He added that the Advisory Council would be a faculty-student-administration committee, and that the board assumed the students would work through channels.

HEALTH MERGER DEAD?

Boards Are Negative. Princeton's two Boards of Health are "not in favor" of consolidating "at this time because we see no significant improvement in health services therefrom."

In those words, Township Board of Health chairman Dr. William Kleinberg reported to Township Committee Monday night on the joint meeting last week of Borough and Township health boards. It was the first time the boards had ever met together.

Dr. Kleinberg, in his letter, promised a report. Mayor John

D. Wallace and Committeeman James A. Floyd said they wanted the report by next Wednesday in time for a meeting with Borough Council and the Joint Sewer Operating Committee.

Township Committee, which favors merged boards, wants to know the reasons for the negative stand.

"I think a consolidated health board is dead for the moment," observed Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley this week.

Borough Council will decide next Monday in agenda session whether to invite the League of Women Voters for discussion. It was the League's report recommending consolidation of the two health boards that started the current flap.

AIR CONDITIONING DUE

Work to Start at Hospital. Some dislocation of normal routine can be expected at Princeton Hospital when permanent air conditioning of patient rooms begins Monday, John W. Kauffman, executive vice president, announced this week.

He said it was inevitable that noise and dust pollution would mark the undertaking, which is expected to require four months for completion. Individual cooling and heating units will be installed underneath the window in each patient's room, Mr. Kauffman said.

The work will involve cutting through the outer walls, and may require the shifting of patients as the work progresses, he said. Installation will be completed two rooms at a time.

"We ask for the cooperation of our patients, visitors and employees as the comfort creating project is carried out," Mr. Kauffman added. The project is being financed with funds raised at the annual Fete held June and through the Christmas Boutique in November. When it is finished, all patient beds will be in air conditioned rooms.

HAVE ONE ON ME?

Bars Can Be Open. Election day drought will no longer plague Township residents. An ordinance was introduced by Committee Monday night, wiping out the prohibition on liquor sales Election Day. Public hearing will be October 19, in plenty of time for November 3.

"The Borough won't be dry any more, either," remarked Committeeman William L. Wilson. "Somebody who wants a drink won't have to go far."

The state recently ruled that municipalities themselves can decide whether to open the bars and stores Election Day. Previously, the shut down was state imposed.

The two Committee candidates — Jay Bleimen for the Democrats and Charles Meyer for the Republicans — were in Monday's audience. Mayor John D. Wallace suggested they buy each other an Election Day drink.

Slow Down. A 35 m.p.h. limit on Ewing, from Route 206 to Harrison, and south on Harrison to the Borough line, was recommended by the Township Traffic Safety Committee. The state also approves. An ordinance will be introduced later.

The site plan review board will now be able to continue indefinitely. The expiration date of the original 1967 three year ordinance was removed. The Township Planning Board was given another year of life so its members can continue to work on zoning.

The Open Space Commission has been transformed into a Conservation Commission bringing it into harmony with a new state law. The new emphasis will be on conservation, but there won't be much change otherwise.

The Commission can have a maximum of seven members, but no fewer than five, one of whom must be on the Regional Planning Board. Mayor Wallace indicated that present Open Space members would probably be re-appointed.

DEADLINE BASES

For Incinerator. The state is "impressed" by what Princeton is doing to clear up incinerator smoke and that state imposed November 5 deadline for shutting the lid on the incinerator doesn't seem quite so threatening.

American Standard, the company that had guaranteed the installation of Princeton's recalcitrant scrubber, has volunteered to re study the scrubber and will report in three weeks.

State officials will get this report immediately, and then make a decision on that November 5 deadline.

Both Princeton mayors, both engineers, both administrators, plus Robert Harvey, assistant to the Borough engineer; Foster Jacobs for the

Princeton Firm Did Erotica Survey

Cool and dry — a kind of "see" approach to sex — characterizes the survey done by Response Analysis Corporation of Princeton on contract to the National Commission on Obscenity and Pornography.

Dr. Herbert Abelson, senior research director for RAC on the project, has already had public exposure as a result of the release last week of the Commission's report. He has appeared on CBS-TV news and on the WCAU radio program "Newsmakers."

RAC was a young firm only eight months old when it won the contract last November, but professional work of some RAC staff members had been known to Commissioners for a considerable time.

"This was the first definitive national study of erotic materials and the attitudes people have toward the availability of these materials, Dr. Abelson points out. RAC consistently used the term "erotic" rather than "pornographic" because the courts have found "pornography" so hard to define, Dr. Abelson says.

The RAC staff developed the questionnaire, did the analysis, data processing and interpretation and wrote the report. Interviewing a nationwide probability sample of 2,486 adults over 21 and 769 adolescents, 15-20 years old, was assigned to Temple University's Institute for Survey Research.

"Erotic materials are actually a relatively small fraction of everyone's life," Dr. Abelson says, "We also found that the better-educated people are, the more interest they have in erotic material. There are people who read more, get involved more in community activities — it's an energy thing, but these people aren't purposefully seeking it out."

"We also found that the people who wanted the most restrictions on erotica were peole who opposed other freedoms — they didn't think newspapers had the right to criticize police, they opposed speeches against God and they didn't think books should be published that attack our system of government."

Dr. Abelson's personal view co-incides with that of the Commission: "People who don't like it or want it, shouldn't have to be exposed to giant billboard advertising or to unwanted mail. And there should probably be an age cut-off, but there aren't enough studies yet to show detrimental effects on the young."

urday evening on campus.

A portable, $250 color TV set stolen between 6 and 7 p.m. from the room of Kirk Liddell, 185 Little Hall, was recovered around 8 p.m., by Ptl. Ranfone and Ptl. Kerry Klink at the rear of a Nassau Street store.

Borough police said that the set was first seen by Township Detective Norman Servis in a car on Palmer Square. His observation led to the recovery of the set.

Also taken from Mr. Liddell's

University and Dean Chace for the Township (James Andrews for the Borough could n't be present), met this Tuesday with Richard J. Sullivan, New Jersey's Commissioner for Environmental Protection.

"We are very encouraged by our meeting with the Commissioner," Robert F. Mooney, Borough Administrator reported, "American Standard has volunteered to do all they can to help, and they said that before we went to the Commissioner, Mr. Sullivan was very receptive. . . ."

Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley said again this week that Commissioner Sullivan has implied that Princeton will be let off the November 5 hook if a plan acceptable to the state can be worked out.

Such a plan might involve altering the incinerator, or Mayor Cawley observes bleakly, buying a whole new one.

Clean-up Burden? Borough officials say, incidentally, that Clean-up Week in both Borough and Township, hasn't added much to the burden of the shaky incinerator. Most Clean Up deposits are dumped in the landfill or, in the Borough's case, carried off to Monroe Township where the collector has a nice little spot for dumping.

"In any case," Mr. Mooney says cheerfully, "we have a lot of storage space: we can always stockpile trash and take care of it later."

HELD FOR GRAND JURY In Campus Robbery. A Trenton man is being held for Grand Jury action in connection with his alleged robbery of $16 from a University student early Saturday morning.

In Borough Court Monday, Wilbur Outten, 21, of Trenton was held over in Mercer County Jail in lieu of $1250 bail to await action by a Grand Jury. He had been arrested after 3 a.m. on Nassau Street by Ptl. Arthur Jackson, shortly after he allegedly robbed Richard Hinchliffe, 20, of $16 from his room in Blair Hall.

Outten was also charged with possession of stolen property. Lt. Michael Carnevale reported that during the investigation, two class rings and a peace symbol that Outten had allegedly taken in a separate theft earlier on Blair were found in his possession.

Police were notified of the incident by the campus police. Outten had allegedly confronted the student in his room and demanded $20. While Hinchliffe, who had only $9 in his possession "bargained" with Outten to go and borrow the rest, a roommate in an adjoining room called the police.

TV Set Recovered. Charges by Ptl. Anthony Ranfone against several youths are also pending in a second theft. Sat-

"ALL MY SONS": Robert Blackburn, a favorite of McCarter repertory audiences, returns to the company this year to play in Arthur Miller's anti-war drama, "All My Sons." With him in the cast is Madge Grant, a newcomer to Princeton this year. (Jim McDonald Photo)

News Of The THEATRES

NEW AND OLD

Faces, in McCarter Company. A dozen newcomers to McCarter will make their bows in Princeton in the first two plays of the 1970-71 repertory season. And there'll be some familiar faces, too.

"All My Sons," the Arthur Miller drama that will launch the season on Friday, October 16, will feature Seymour Penzer, theatre veteran who has appeared in about 20 Broadway shows over the years, including "Oklahoma!", "Finian's Rainbow" and "Baker Street."

Opposite him in the Miller play will be Dorothy Chace, who has played Broadway, off Broadway, regional and university theatres. She will appear later in the season in "The Show Off."

Others in "All My Sons" will be Madge Grant, who has studied in England and with Joan Littlewood's Theatre Workshop. She'll be in "The Show Off," too. Tom Brennan, who hasn't acted at McCarter since 1964 although he has been directing, will also be in "All My Sons."

Fred Morsell and Sylvia Soares will open with the Miller play, and then appear as Walter and Ruth Younger in "A Raisin in the Sun." Miss Soares appeared off Broadway as Segilola in "Slaveship" and as Madame and Gentleman Caller in "Black Quartet."

Mr. Morsell was with the New York Public Shakespeare Festival this summer, appearing in "Henry VI" and "Richard III," and understudying Keith Richard and the Duke of York.

Old friends welcomed back include Robert Blackburn, who will act in "All My Sons" and, later, will direct "The Show Off." Beth Dixon and Richard Pilcher will be in the Miller play also.

No Triangle Show Until April

The annual Christmas-time opening of Triangle Club's show will change places this season with P. J. & B.'s annual spring musical.

So this year, it will be "Mame" (pending acquisition of legal rights) in McCarter Theatre on December 10, 11 and 12, and Triangle opening April 29 during Houseparties Weekend. Milton Lyon will direct both productions.

It all came about because Triangle decided to eliminate its usual nationwide Christmas vacation tour, and substitute a shorter tour late in the spring.

"Triangle shows used to be written during summer vacations," Mr. Lyon explains, "but college kids don't live this way any more. They work politically in the summer or they go to Europe, and they don't start writing until they get back in the fall."

This means too short a time for re-writing and rehearsal toward a December opening in Princeton, Mr. Lyon says.

"And this year, there will be the two-week gap for the Princeton plan political break which shortens our time still more. It all has to do with the way kids live and think today — Triangle was structured for the way kids were 40 years ago."

Mr. Lyon is enthusiastic about the change. It will mean plenty of time to write and re-write and rehearse toward the goal of a first-rate, professional production. And, he emphasizes, it does not portend the eventual demise of Triangle at all.

Bill Metzger '71, president of Triangle, says, "A spring opening will enable writers, composers and contributors from every creative field on campus to work together for a longer time."

$$$$. Other factors influenced the decision. Costs are going up like a first-night curtain. And it's hard to find alumni willing to spend the time to hire a hall, sell tickets and collect contributions.

This year, for example, according to an article in the Daily Princetonian, only about 12 alumni clubs and similar organizations were willing to consider Triangle for this year, and they were so far apart geographically that it would be prohibitively expensive to touch them all.

"There are about 30 strong Triangle cities in the country," said Mr. Metzger. "We try to get fairly well distributed to the alumni by taking a different route each year."

Also, reports the Princetonian, some alumni were grumpy about last year's show. "Call A Spade a Shovel," which had in its cast both women undergraduates and black undergraduates.

"Some alumni don't approve of what's happening on the nation's campuses, so they aren't willing to pay to see what students think and feel," Mr. Metzger added.

Time to Create. John F. Ball '52, chairman of Triangle's Graduate Board of Trustees, said, "We feel that the traditional all-male backline format is no longer consistent with what today's Princeton undergraduate wants to do."

"This is all for the best," Mr. Lyon believes. "It gives us a chance for some real writing and creativity, because the essence of Triangle is that it's an original, creative effort."

"YOU'RE A GOOD MAN" Charlie Brown. The musical based on the "Peanuts" comic strip will play McCarter next Monday at 8:30; as the second off-Broadway show of the season.

Clark Gesner, who graduated from Princeton in 1960, wrote music and lyrics for the Charles Schulz comic-strip characters to sing. Linus, Lucy, Charlie, Schroeder and the rest are all included.

Single tickets are available at the box-office for Charlie and also for "Theatre on the Balustrade," the Prague offering that will come to McCarter Monday, October 26.

Here's Lusty Tom

The bedroom romp at the inn? That unforgettable eating scene? The squire's hunt?

Film goers who saw "Tom Jones" back in 1963 usually talk about a favorite scene from the adaptation of the Henry Fielding novel. People who didn't see "Tom Jones" and are tired of hearing about those scenes can check it all out for themselves next Tuesday at 8:30 at the Playhouse.

That's the one night stand set up by the Princeton Historical Society to benefit the Society's various projects. Tickets may be purchased at the Playhouse box office or at Bainbridge House, 158 Nassau Street, the Society's headquarters.

Tony Richardson directed the film from John Osborne's adaptation. "Tom Jones" has a cast featuring Albert Finney as Tom himself, Susannah York, Hugh Griffith, Joyce Redman and Diane Cilento.

GODARD

And Antonioni. "Sympathy for the Devil" (known also as "One Plus One") will, with Antonioni's "Blow Up," bring McCarter's Fall Film Series to a close this weekend.

Friday, at 7 and 9:30 p.m., the theatre will show "Sympathy," described by the New York Times as "Godard on black paws: rage, murder, fascism, acid, pornography, sex, revolution, brutality and all the other things that make life worth living." This is the film with sequences from a recording session with Mick Jagger and the Rolling Stones."

Saturday, at 7 and 9:15, McCarter will screen the Antonioni "Blow Up," from 1966. Vanessa Redgrave and David Hemmings star.

"LIONS LOVE"

With Viva. What with one series or another, there's always a movie at McCarter. Not popcorn and kiddies, exactly, but always a movie.

With the Fall Film Series over, the New Cinema Series starts, and the opener is "Lions Love," with Viva (that's Warhol's superstar) and Ragni and Rado, who created "Hair." It's next Tuesday, 8 p.m.

The film is comic and naked; nobody under 18 will be admitted.

In "Lions Love," the trio play themselves, more or less, waiting in a rented Hollywood mansion (with giant bed and heated pool, or is it heated bed and giant pool?) for their Big Break.

Other titles in the series: "I am Curious (Yellow)"; "Duet for Cannibals"; "Flesh"; "Hospital"; "Out of It"; and "Early Works."

GRAHAM DANCERS HERE

For Company's Recital. Although Martha Graham announced last week that, at the age of 76, she will no longer dance publicly, her company will continue, and dancers associated with her for more than ten years will be among the performers when the Martha Graham Dance Company comes to McCarter this Sunday at 3 p.m.

In "Every Soul is a Circus," Bertram Ross will dance the role of Ringmaster, which he created. Helen McGehee will portray Medea in the Graham dramatization of the Medea legend, "Cave of the Heart."

HALLOWE'EN TREAT

"Hansel and Gretel." The old German folk tale of Hansel and Gretel, set to music by Engelbert Humperdinck (that's E.H. Number One, not the 1970 brand) will be presented by the Princeton Opera Association on October 30 as a Hallowe'en treat.

Two performances have been planned, one for 11 a.m. and the other for 2:30 p.m., both in McCarter Theatre. Tickets are now on sale at the McCarter box office. The Association hopes this can be a biennial event for Princeton.

Igor Chichagov will direct. Here's the first cast: Gretel (Jane Tipton), Hansel (Mary Alice Witte); Mother (Muriel Long); Father (Bruce Fifer); Witch (Virginia Cole); Sandman (Carol Peterson); Dew

The Shakers, Quakers, and Pilgrims are alive and well at Cane Farm

"Less is more" said the 1930 modernists. "Amen", came the centuries-old answer of our earliest settlers. Their search for simplicity and truth gave us some of the finest examples of American design and craftsmanship. You can see — and buy — museum-quality re-creations of these fine pieces at Cane Farm Furniture.

For Example:

Sturdy little Shaker tripod table. Great for snackers, readers, smokers.

Only $49

IT'S NEW To Us

COLOR IS THE WORD

At Piccadilly. Dropping in to the Piccadilly boutique at 200 Nassau Street, we found a woman browsing through the colorful silk print dresses. She was asking whether Piccadilly sent out a catalogue. "I just don't find dresses like these in Virginia," she said.

People are really pleased with the color we have," Mrs. Judy Guidalian remarked later. "Usually, at this time of year it's browns and tans.

The silks that so enchanted the Virginian come in little sleeveless dresses that are wearable all year round. The colors are marvelously bright and pure — no muddied yellows, for instance — and they are used in swirling, abstract patterns that are very different. Usually the dresses are trimmed with the dominant color. They are lined.

Also very colorful are the sheer wool prints, with the texture of wool challis. One has a stretched out paisley design in greens and blues with a dash of white.

Piccadilly is finding great response to its offerings of "skinny ribs." These colorful tops are made of Wintuck, an orlon acrylic in a ribbed knit style. They're quite long, and have either turtle or mock turtle necks. ($12.) Or in pure wool, a skinny rib with a tightly stitch yoke and a three- or four-button opening halfway down the front. There's a wide tie belt.

The shop has lots of pants to wear with the skinny ribs: tweeds, solids, muted stripes, plaids, and made in junior and missy cuts. Many are in men's wear fabrics.

You'll see a number of long skirts that are cozy for winter. Some are quilted prints, some are wool weaves. A particularly interesting longie is a custom-tailored wool Jacquard. The colors are red, navy and royal blue, with a fringe at the hem for accent. The same fabric comes in a sleek little dress, long-sleeved and fringed at the boat neck and hem.

Dresses at Piccadilly range from $16 to $50. The short ones are often designed to be worn alone or with pants. Add a pair of egg shell pants ($13) to a little blue cotton velour dress and you have an up-to-the-minute outfit for $36.

Back to ribbing for a moment. Piccadilly has just about sold out its little ribbed dresses, but more are coming in. We saw a gray-and-maroon version with the skinny-rib top tightening considerably at the waistline and then falling rather full to the hem. ($20.) To wear with it, if you want, maroon pants in a duplicate rib. ($18) Both of orlon and washable, of course.

Also at the Piccadilly are those three buttons-on one shoulder dresses that are so in vogue. These are rather full, you wear the dress loose or with a chain belt. Pants, again, to match or blend, if you want.

Among the shirts are the famous "Skyrs" — a really good shirt in a soft, soft fabric. You'll see bright prints and also solid colors. They're extremely pretty.

As another customer said while we were there, "I'm glad to see somebody has some pretty clothes."

PURE LLAMA PONCHOS, hand-knitted in Bolivia in bands of earth colors have just come in at The Piccadilly on Nassau Street. You rarely find two that are exactly alike. Anne Lessing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lessing, 27 Marion Road East, models a poncho with a llama figure on it. Others have elaborate stars. ($22.)

THY GOURMET'S RECIPE

For Onion Soup. TV's Galloping Gourmet has nothing on Andy Steiner at Princeton Gourmet, we've decided. Andy has a superb recipe for onion soup that has a nice make-the-day before angle to it. And you'll see mimeographed copies in the front room, along with a display of a suitable 7-quart Vallauris pots and individual tureens in ceramics for serving.

Gourmet, at Nassau and Harrison Streets, has about everything you'll ever need in the kitchen arts department. This also includes fine china, glassware and even a Viking drip-stopper for your wine bottle. (No more slosh on the table). The latter comes in either gold or silver plate. ($5.50 or $6.50)

Gourmet has a lot of the new linens put out by Dansk and there are some very merry colors. The fabrics include some rather nubby weaves and they're treated for permanent press and soil resistance.

We noticed highball glasses in a heavy, clear plastic with raised sunflowers on the side for decor (and better grip). ($18 for 6) And beautiful Orrefors decanters with simple, pure lines in clear glass.

There are some interesting china patterns, including the deep blue-and-white Aenemone pattern in Arabiawear from Finland.

Gourmet has about every size of serving platter, every shape and material . . . from stainless steel on. We're always intrigued with cutting and cheese boards, and the Gourmet selection includes some beautiful woods and veined marbles. There's a low lazy susan in a family mottled white marble, round in shape, that is quite lovely. ($9.50)

The oval platters in stainless steel, most of them by Altimar, come in many different sizes. The big one, for your Thanksgiving Turkey, is $16. And there are some very interesting new shapes in stainless steel serving dishes.

For those who love the dull gleam of pewter, Gourmet is showing a fat-bellied coffee pot with a raffia-wrapped han-

"SWEET BABY JAMES"

Taylor, at Dillon Gym The fastest rising new folk artist of 1970 is the way McCarter Theatre tags folk singer James Taylor, scheduled for Dillon Gym on Saturday, November 7.

"Sweet Baby James" his only album, has sparked a demand for tickets which and again we quote McCarter has only been exceeded by Bob Dylan.

James Taylor is the 22 year old son of the dean of the University of North Carolina Medical School, an interesting pedigree.

The folksinger was originally booked for October 17. If you held tickets for that date you must exchange them at the McCarter box office for comparable locations in the gym.

AUDITIONS PLANNED

For Rigoletto. Those interested in auditioning for the mid winter production of "Rigoletto" to be given by the Princeton Opera Association at McCarter Theatre are asked to contact Mrs. Frank Schley, 1000 Kingston Road, 921-2148 for an appointment.

The company's director, Mr. Igor Chuchagov, will be hearing singers. It would be possible for singers interested in joining the workshop to apply at this time.

form. The West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School district will present the world famous Nicola Marionettes in a musical adventure story, The Emperor's Nightengale. Two performances will be given at 1:30 and 3:30, Saturday, October 17, at the Maurice Hawk School.

The show is a delightful marionette version of a story by Hans Christian Anderson. Children in the audience will be called upon to be helpful in solving the problems encountered.

Tickets are 50c for children and adults. Mrs. B. J. Beard is in charge of the program. For further information call 799-0509.

PLAYHOUSE

Getting Straight (now playing) is an amusing and almost elegant attack at the establishment. The forces under assault are tradition bound college officials and the setting is supposed to be Berkeley, although the film was shot at Lane Community College in Eugene, Ore.

Elliot Gould plays a college drop out who has returned to school to get a degree enabling him to teach. At age 28, he's sympathetic to the students but wants to get on with the business of earning a living. But school authorities distrust him and circumstances conspire to defeat his aim.

The demonstrations turn into riots in this film, with coeds being clubbed on their heads, beaten and gassed. The police are stereotyped as unfeeling brutes and the school authorities as backward clods. However, much of the time the film is an absorbing, thoughtful, slanted, commentary. The dialogue is tart and relevant, sometimes bawdy, and the situations from lovemaking to classroom sessions are freshly observed.

Candy Bergen is Gould's girl in the film. Robert F. Lyons is the hippie who's avoiding the draft. Max Julien is the black militant. It's based on the book by Ken Kolb, and directed by Richard Rush.

GARDEN

Fellini Satyricon (now playing) is a large-scale cross between DeMille and Kubrick, providing a staggering visual experience.

"Satyricon" re creates a stylized, impressionistic conception of pre Christian Roman society's atmosphere. It paints one awesome tableau after another, so rich in texture and composition that easily sated viewers will encounter monotony.

Many frames are composites of cross sections of Roman life from corpulent aristocrats to deformed peasantry. Brutality and vice are standardized. The encounters of the young protagonist, played by Martin Potter, are followed by Fellini in the style of an almost hallucinatory odyssey. While the direction is neutral, the inference is that the material excesses and moral decadence of pre Christian Rome also characterize contemporary life.

Engagements and Weddings

ENGAGEMENTS

Fechter-Swango. Miss Karen B. Fechter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis G. Fechter of Pennington Road, to Wayne Swango, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel L. Swango of Trenton. A September 1971 wedding is planned.

Miss Fechter, a graduate of Hopewell Valley Central High School, is a senior at Helene Fuld School of Nursing. Her fiance, a graduate of Trenton High School, is employed by Ditmars and Carmichael, consulting engineers in Princeton.

WEDDINGS

Dintenfass-Vivian. Miss Ann W. Vivian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie L. Vivian Jr. of 74 Maclean Circle, to Andrew S. Dintenfass, son of Dr. Arthur Dintenfass of Margate City and Mrs. Harold Lauf man of New York, October 4 at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride, a graduate of Princeton High School and the University of Pennsylvania, Class of 1970, is a teacher in the Philadelphia Get Set program. Her husband, an alumnus of George School, is completing his studies at the University of Pennsylvania. He is a filmmaker and also teaches a photography course at the Parkway School in Philadelphia.

Lebra-Maxson. Miss Barbara L. Maxson, daughter of Mrs. Arthur F. Weed of Trenton, to Nicholas L. Lebra Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas L. Lebra of Long Branch, October 3: St. Paul's Catholic Church.

The bride is employed by Western Electric Company, Hopewell. Her husband is a graduate of Stuart's School of Business, Asbury Park, and the Educational Computer Programming Institute, Eastontown. The couple will live in Levittown, Pa.

Lutz Anthony. Miss Susan M. Anthony, daughter of Mrs. George E. Anthony of 90 Cuyler Road and the late Mr. Anthony, to William A. Lutz, son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Lutz of East Northport, N.Y. September 19: Princeton University Chapel.

Considine Wylie. Miss Alexandra P. Wylie, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert H. Wylie of Riverdale, the Bronx, to Norbert A. Considine 3d son of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert A. Considine Jr. of Kingston, September 26: Riverdale Presbyterian Church.

The bride is a graduate of Concord Academy and the University of Pennsylvania. Her husband is an alumnus of Portsmouth Priory and Pennsylvania.

die. ($36) For bright color in the kitchen, the Dansk offerings in enamelware are very cheery sets in gold, or blue or red. These are all dishwasher proof and have chip proof edges that protect the enamel. A fine gift for the bride. There are wooden handles on the frying pans, and amusing raised crossbars on the saucepan lids.

Drifting around, we noticed that Gourmet's unusual Christmas cards are offered at a 10 percent discount through the end of this month. And typically Gourmet the wine thermometers are displayed nearby.

There are hundt pans in various sizes for tea time cakes that need no icing, and we saw the famous Nordic Krumkake pan two flat little irons with a trailing design etched inside that appears on the cakes. And there are omelet pans — and bamboo skewers (30 cents a pack), and goosefeather pastry brushes (69 cents), and sleek, wood handled fondue forks.

The copper pans are overwhelming. Molds, pots, frying pans, bakers and even a double-boiler with a heavy white ceramic upper pot.

For something that's different, Gourmet has Norelco's streamlined coffee mill and coffeemaker in heavy plastic. Just plug them in — fresh ground coffee every meal. The shop has a fine assortment of coffee beans, too, including it's own special brand. It's worth it.

SEE DESIGNERS SCARVES

At Clayton's. H. P. Clayton on Palmer Square, is showing the extremely beautiful silk scarves by Echo featuring award winning designs from members of the Art Students' League in New York.

The original art work is on view at Clayton's this week, as well as the silk scarves that won prizes. You'll see "Chainlink" a design in green and purple by a grandmother, Miriam Pent. And the graceful shading, yet defined lines and control of "Camieu", by Kyotara Tokita, and "Patchwork," which gives a whole new interpretation to the authentic patchwork so popular today.

The other designs include free splatter prints, geometrics and a 3 D cubist design that is stunning.

SCHOOL BUS, TRUCK 'HIT'

By Vandals. "The school system has been having a lot of vandalism lately," remarked Township Detective Samuel Bianco this week, as he reported two more incidents of malicious damage to school property.

Last week, it was a dozen windows at Community Park School; this past weekend, the targets were a school bus and a stake truck owned by the school system.

From the bus, parked at the Tiger Garage lot off Witherspoon Street, vandals removed a hatchet. Its right front windshield was shattered by a three inch rock which Mario Musso, the investigating officer, found on the hood of the bus.

The truck had been parked in the Valley Road school lot. Ptl. Musso reported that a left side window had been shattered by two rocks and the truck's windshield shot four times by a BB gun.

TWO HOMES ENTERED

On Dodds Lane. Township police report the entry last week of two homes on Dodds Lane.

Det. Samuel Bianco reported that a rear window was pried open to gain entry to the home of Albert Keuschkel, 337 Dodds, between 4:30 Friday afternoon and 12:50 Saturday afternoon when a neighbor, returning home, noticed the front door of the Keuschkel home was open. The second floor rooms were ransacked. Taken, police said, were a cameo brooch, five silver dollars and eight Kennedy half dollars.

The home of Louis Lavine, 372 Dodds, was entered and lightly ransacked between 6 and 9:35 Friday evening, but the investigating officer, Ptl. Jerry Olfredo, reported that apparently nothing had been taken.

There were no signs of forced entry, he said.

Elm Ridge Bridge Delayed

If there is an early snowfall this year, it may arrive before the Elm Ridge Road bridge is completed.

Begun last July, construction on the new bridge was first held up when the concrete from the foundations of the old bridge was tough to extract. Now, more problems have arisen with the temporary loss in transit of stay-in-place forms ordered from a firm in St. Louis.

James B. DiLouie, Assistant County Engineer for Bridges, said he hoped the concrete for the bridge deck could be poured this week. While this is settling, work can proceed on the bride sidewalks, railings and parapet.

"Abnut the only good fortune we have had with this job is the dry weather," Mr. DiLouie commented. He now forsees an end to the work by November 1, barring further complications.

BIRTHS

Fifteen Are Born. Nine boys and six girls were born last week at Princeton hospital.

Daughters were born to: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Genovese, R D. 1, Cranbury, September 27, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kingston, 129 Linwood Circle, September 28; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie T. Sons were born to: Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Rissmiller, 14 Rocky Brook Court, Hightstown, September 27; Mr. and Mrs. Konrad Jarausch, 101 Review Avenue, Trenton, Mr. and Mrs. John Stoffolano, Garden View Terrace Apts., Hightstown, both September 28; Mr. and Mrs. Michael A. Tamasi, Cherrybrook Drive, September 29; Mr. and Mrs. James H. Barbour Jr., 14 Woodrow Road, Kendall Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Hamilton, 11 Zachary Lane Apts., Yardville, both October 1; and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie P. Hunneman, Princeton Arms North, Cranbury, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gund, Raymond Road, Kingston, both October 2.

LEAGUE PLANS NIGHTS

For Political Candidates. The League of Women Voters of the Princeton Area is sponsoring Candidates Nights in Princeton and in West Windsor.

The four candidates for Borough Council and the two for Township Committee will appear in a program at 8 p.m., Wednesday, October 21, Community Park All-purpose Room.

West Windsor office seekers will appear Thursday, October 22, 8 p.m., at the Maurice Hawk School, Princeton Junction, for Candidates Night in that community.

The audience will be able to question the candidates at both meetings and will have an opportunity to speak informally with them over refreshments following the meetings.

INDOCHINA IS TOPIC

Of Luncheon Program at YWCA. Dr. Richard Ullman will open the fall Contemporary Issues Series II at the YWCA next Thursday, October 15. His topic will be "The Current Situation in Indochina".

Dr. Ullman, professor of politics and international affairs and associate dean of the Woodrow Wilson School, is a specialist on international relations and on the formulation of foreign and military policy.

Reservations for the luncheon meeting are due by Monday, and may be made with the YWCA office. Nursery care will be available to participants' children.

Sponsored by the Public Affairs Committee of the YWCA with Mrs. William Selden as chairman, the three part series will consider current social concerns. The last two sessions will be held the first Thursdays of November and December on the topics of US and world population, and white liberation and black nationalism. Attendance at all of the sessions is open to anyone in the Princeton area with a reservation.

All three programs are planned to fit the lunch hour restrictions of businessmen and women, with lunch, the speaker and a portion of the discussion scheduled for the one hour period.

THIRD ROUND THURSDAY

In Adult School Lecture Series

Dr. David Popenoe of Princeton will be the next lecturer in the Princeton Adult School series on "The Spatial Environment" Thursday evening at 9 in the Princeton High School cafeteria. His topic "Some Social Considerations in Future Land Development."

In the Exploring the New Feminism series Celestine Ware of Douglass College will discuss "The Politics of the Black Matriarchy at 9 in the high school auditorium. An hour earlier at 8 p.m. in the same auditorium, James Seawright sculptor in residence at Princeton University, will talk on Electronic in the Arts" in the Art Forms in Today's World series.

Attendance at individual lectures in the series is welcomed. Single admission at the door for each is $1.50.

Dr. Popenoe is associate professor of Sociology at Douglass College and associate professor in the Department of Urban Planning and Policy Development at Rutgers University. He has been a consultant to numerous city and state governments and planning groups and has published widely in the field.

The author of "Woman Power" Mrs. Ware is a reporter and producer for station WBAI of the Pacifica Foundation chain of listener sponsored radio stations. Her most recent interview was with Bobby Seale in his recent release from prison.

Mr. Seawright will show movies of his electronic sculptures and experimental television productions. He has taught at Columbia Princeton Electronic Music Center School of Visual Arts in New York and at Rutgers.

Township Hall to Close

This Monday, October 12, Township Hall will be closed to the public so that interior alterations can get under way.

The Annex building, where Health Department and Zoning and Engineering offices are located, will be open. So will the tax office in the Open-in Research Building on Terhune.

The Township Hall closing will be for that one day only, so far as current schedules indicate.

G.O.P. DINNER MONDAY

At Nassau Inn. William D. Ruckelshaus, Assistant Attorney General of the United States Civil Division, will be the guest speaker at the annual Republican Dinner on Monday at the Nassau Inn.

His talk is expected to include current developments in Federal approaches to the problems of campus disturbances, major demonstrations, extremist movements labor relations in vital industries, and civil rights of military personnel.

The Civil Division which he heads staffed by some 200 attorneys, has been directly involved in such recent major events as the appeal of Lt. Calley for a civil trial in connection with the "Mylai Massacre, the Black Panther Party rally in New Haven, the Air Traffic Controllers strike and the Postal Employees strike.

Plans are being made for his appearance at Princeton University but alma mater, earlier the same day. From graduation here Cum Laude in 1957 Mr. Ruckelshaus went to Harvard Law School, the Indiana Attorney General's office and election to the Indiana House of Representatives where he was Majority Leader. At the age of 32 he was appointed Assistant Attorney General of the United States.

Dinner reservations may be made at Republican Headquarters, 360 Nassau Street, telephone 924 6150.

MAN FINED $205

For Driving While Suspended. Donald B. Tadlock, 27, 59 Green Street, paid a $200 fine and $5 court costs Monday in Borough court for driving while on a revoked list.

In other cases, Judge Theodore T. Tams Jr. fined Corydon S. Kammler 2d, 20, 300 Set Road, Skillman, $15, for failing to wear goggles or face shield while driving a motorcycle, Jeffrey Bollentin, 18, 30 Baker Court, $15, litter/inspection violation; and John P. Servis, 71, 30 Harrison Street, $12, stop sign.

OUTING CLUB SET

For Organizational Meeting. Hikers, campers, canoeists, sailors, cyclists and outdoor lovers in general are invited to attend the fall organizational meeting of the YMCA Outing Club to be held this Sunday at 6 p.m. at the YMCA.

The meeting is planned to welcome new participants and old to the club which is composed of adults and families of the area and will include a pot luck supper and general planning session for the fall and early winter season.

The club plans bi-monthly weekend programs of a varied nature with club members sharing in giving leadership to the programs. David Geisler, Franklin Corner Road, Lawrenceville is the new club advisor and with the help of Mr. & Mrs. Kent Kilbourne, Prospect Avenue, and Mr. & Mrs. Larry Tatsch, Main Street, Pennington is serving as the Committee for the organizational meeting and supper.

Anyone wishing more detailed information on the Outing Club can call Mr. Geisler in the evening at 896 1613 or the YMCA office during the day.

Students Ponder Goals, Remember Spring Strike

LIAISON WITH SCHOOL BOARD: These are the five "core" members of the liaison committee between PHS's Student Council and the Princeton Regional Board of Education. They have already attended their first board meeting, and at least two of them have spoken at public board meetings. (left to right) David Weiner, Jim Laity, Peter Bruce, Denise Oliver and Kurt Bauman.

A Princeton High senior's participation in a state-sponsored conference on "Goals in Education" was the spring board this week for the Wednesday evening Open Forum on Princeton's schools. The student is Kurt Bauman.

This Wednesday's Forum was also scheduled to hear sharp criticism of the schools generally and Princeton High in particular from Jim Laity, also a senior. He's new Forum chairman and one of the founders of the new PHS "underground" newspaper, "The Dungeon."

Jim Laity is co-chairman with Kurt Bauman, of the Liaison Committee between the PHS Student Council and the Board of Education. Other core members are Peter Bruce, Denise Oliver and David Weiner.

"Underground." Whatever Jim Laity's final decision on speaking out this Wednesday may have been, "The Dungeon" has already carried his views. The paper is "underground" only in the sense that kids write it, buy the paper, mimeograph it, and distribute it, and need money to finance it.

Obviously it's not "an official school publication," as its Volume 1, Number 1 states, but it's not repressed by the administration of the high school, either, so "underground" is a slight overstatement.

Editors are Allyn Dimock, Francis Brodsky, John Brodsky, John Freeman, John Horton, John Kyser, John Langberg, Michael Langberg, Stephanie Shapiro, Peter Bruce and Kurt and Jim.

"We want as many students as possible to contribute to us, whether they're conservative or not, and we'll print everything, if it isn't too long," Jim states.

The first volume describes a new Student Guidance Office, staffed by PHS students to help other PHS students; an announcement of a student-faculty community Grievance Committee (community members are Mrs. T. C. Allen and Gene Keller); a lengthy essay contrasting the Dionysian life with the experience of religion, and an acid comment from Jim on the opening of school called 'Lest We Forget."

"A better title might be 'The Great Snow Job' since that's exactly what the Administration is trying to pull," writes Jim.

"Their main purpose has been to guide the school smoothly back into the same rut that it has been stuck in for the last 20 years. They are trying to make us forget or ignore the last four weeks of school last year. Their attitude toward the entire strike and the serious attempts to improve the school that followed, is 'Now that you've had your fun, let's get down to the business of learning.'"

They don't seem to realize that that's exactly what last year's activities were all about. What happened to all the discussions about the purpose of education? What about all the suggestions to improve the school? What about the realization that students have some power after all?

Have all these been forgotten? That's what the Administration would like to believe. It's up to us not to let them be forgotten, not to be snowed under."

"Goals." "Goals in Education" was the subject of a day-long conference held June 20 under the sponsorship of the New Jersey State Department of Education and Kurt was one of the 15 20 students invited to attend.

Federal Health - Education - Welfare officials had asked each state for reports on Educational Goals and New Jersey decided on the conference as a means for gathering report material. Ten "goals" were prepared by Educational Testing Service and were used as discussion points by conference participants.

Kurt took notes, kept his thick agenda and planned to use both in his Forum presentation.

"Actually, these "goals' were all too general," he says. "Those of us in the conference started calling them 'motherhood statements' because none of the basic ten were — well, controversial.

"For example, one was: 'The educational system of New Jersey should help every person in the state acquire an understanding of ethical principles and values and the ability to apply them in his own life'."

He shrugs.

"Actually, I was surprised by the number of people who wanted real change in the school system; in fact, I had the feeling there was little resistance to change, at least in my small group, and these were people like teachers, administrators or businessmen interested in schools."

"We talked a lot about Guidance. 'College' or 'Vocational' advisors would be a better name than Guidance Counselors, we decided. Guidance of pupils should be in the hands of any teacher, or whoever the teachers encouraged to take on a guidance role. A really good teacher IS a guidance person, just naturally.

"In my group, we felt there should be equal opportunity for ALL students — elimination of 'tracking' and as much emphasis on Trade-and-Industry classes as on Advanced Placement. And elimination of the grading system, and don't let teachers see IQ scores before they do grading.

"But mostly, to make students feel accepted by the school system — not forced in to it, but wanted to be there."

HOSPITAL COMMENDED

For "Excellent" Patient Care. The "excellence of patient care" at the Princeton Hospital was commended by the Joint Commissioner on Accreditation of Hospitals as it renewed its certification of the 241-bed Hospital and its 93 bed Merwick Extended Care Center. There were four minor recommendations for improvement.

Surveys of the Hospital and Merwick were made in August by representatives of the Joint Commission. Their report was reviewed by the JCAH in Chicago and the letter advising of the Certification of Accreditation was sent to Dr. Kauffman, the executive vice-president and chief administrative officer of the Hospital since May, 1946.

Copies went to Dr. Joel Z. Felsher, president of the Medical and Dental Staff, and George W. Conover, president of the Board of Trustees on which he has served since 1940. The voluntary nonprofit hospital has had continuous approval since 1930, when the ratings were given by the American College of Surgeons. The Joint Commission now includes the ACS plus the American College of Physicians, American Hospital Association and the American Medical Association.

"The Commission wishes to commend you for maintaining standards deserving of accreditation and for your constant effort to improve the quality of patient care," said Dr. John D. Porterfield, the JCAH director, in the covering letter.

The special commendation was made under Recommendations and Comments and said:

"The administration, medical and nursing staff and allied personnel are commended for the excellence of patient care and the obvious dedication to the standards of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals."

Four Changes Suggested. There were four suggestions for the Hospital:

"Laundry procedures for the handling of contaminated linen from any source should be improved to conform with acceptable standards.

"All professional personnel who make written contributions to the clinical record of the patient should supply definitive identification by full signature and title.

"A general physical examination should be done and recorded on obstetrical patients who have caesarean sections.

"The nursing care plan should be expanded to include the long and short-term goals for rehabilitation and discharge."

A single suggestion was made in the recommendations for Merwick, the Elsie Procter Matthews Unit of the Hospital at 79 Bayard Lane. It stated:

"The nursing care plans should be expanded to include goals for rehabilitation and discharge."

"The survey team made a complete inspection of Princeton Hospital's complete program of comprehensive health care for the three-county area it serves," said Mr. Kauffman. The JCAH is in the process of tightening its standards and already has reduced the certification period from three to two years," he added.

"All hospital procedures are

School Groups Should Unite.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Recent reports in the press indicate that pro and anti-school administration organizations are forming in the community, with the aim of supporting candidates for the Princeton Regional School Board

My knowledge of the membership of both groups leads me to believe that both are sincerely concerned with the welfare of the school system and of the school children.

I believe that the growing tendency for polarization of the community into pro and anti-factions is to be deplored. Those who are familiar with the situation will know that matters are not so simple.

Perhaps it would be well if the various groups could join together into a revitalized "Friends of Public Education," which could support the school system and debate the various issues on their merits. Such a broadly conceived group could well serve as a proving ground for school board candidates

The most effective school board candidates are likely to be persons of an independent frame of mind, capable of judging each issue on its merits. I urge prospective candidates not to identify themselves prematurely with any one faction or preconceived position

Driver's Training Needed.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Enclosed is the text of a letter that I have sent to the Board of Education. Readers are urged to forward their own opinions to the Board of Education

MRS. JOHN STROTHER
201 Grover Avenue

"On September 27, 1969 I wrote to you asking if behind the wheel driver training could be instituted at the high school in the near future.

"There have been many experiments started in the Princeton schools in the last two years. No one knows whether these experiments will be profitable or not But driver training is not only practical but the advantages are obvious

"Why can't the children of Princeton be given the same opportunity as the children in other high schools in this area?"

Commuter Aid May Come.

To the Editor of Town Topics.

At last prospects for the harassed commuter appear brighter. Last week the U.S House of Representatives passed a bill permitting up to $11 billion of Federal monies to be spent in five years for improved urban mass transit

Although this figure is small compared to the $1 billion recently authorized by the Senate for only one year of new highway building, it is indeed a major step forward for commuters and city dwellers.

Similar House action has not yet been taken on the Rail Passenger Service Act of 1970 (S. 3706), which is the only concrete action likely to be undertaken in time to prevent further rapid deterioration and abandonment of important intercity rail passenger service.

It is this bill, not the mass transit one, which is important for continued improvement of Northeast Corridor services, such as the New York Washington Metroliners, and for rejuvenation of New York Boston, Trenton Philadelphia Pittsburgh services, etc.

For New Jersey, especially, improved intercity transportation is important to forestall renewed pressure for a fourth jetport A high proportion of present flights from New York and Newark are for distances which can be efficiently handled by high speed trains with far less demand on our resources of land, air, and even cash

(It is interesting to note that the Massachusetts Port Authority which operates Logan Airport at Boston has itself decided to increase its efforts to promote development of trains in the Northeast Corridor, in view of the fact that 38 per cent of Logan's air traffic is between Boston and New York.)

The Rail Passenger Service Act would establish a "for profit" quasi-public corporation, whose sole aim would be to provide an improved modern national rail passenger service where needed for the public good The bill has been passed by the Senate and favorably reported out by the House Commerce Committee

Its proposed initial funding, with $40 million available for direct grants, and between $135-300 million for long term loans, is even smaller than that for the Urban Mass Transit bill. But it is a vital first step towards action

I hope citizens of New Jer

Omission Questioned.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Why is it that no space has been allocated to the three contests for the County Board of Chosen Freeholders in TOWN TOPICS' "Why I Plan to Vote . . ." series? With the financial resources that the Republican Party has been able to tap for this particular campaign, I am particularly concerned lest the GOP's lavish ads constitute the only exposure which area voters will have to the candidates for this important office.

Both as President of the Princeton Community Democratic Organization and as an individual Democrat, I have devoted considerable effort in recent years to the reform, restructuring, and reinvigoration of the Democratic Party in Mercer County. It is ironic that just as these efforts are beginning to bear fruit, the Republicans should trot out as a campaign theme the issue of "machine boss rule." This year's Democratic candidates deserve if anything, the antithesis of that epithet.

Johnny Watson is the county's first black freeholder and ran in the 1969 primary as a reform alternative to the organization candidates. He has been a consistent champion of the open primary and of other efforts to restructure the county organization. Paul Sollami has been similarly sympathetic to the forces for reform.

Gil Laggosy is relatively new to party affairs, having served most recently as President of the Hamilton Township Board of Education. He is hardly the kind of candidate one would expect a "boss machine" to nominate for county office.

If the old adage about people in glass houses relates any validity, it is particularly ironic that the Republicans should trot out the tired charge of hossism in 1970. The Republican candidate for Congress is an archtype of the old order which Democratic reformers have been fighting.

His recent departure from our party is a tribute to the force of an idea whose time has come. The alacrity with which the Republican leader

DeCAVALCANTE JAILED

Draws 15-Year Term. The maximum jail term, 15 years, was imposed Friday on Samuel R. DeCavalcante, the reputed Cosa Nostra leader following his conviction on three counts of extortion. He will be eligible for parole considera tion in 1978

Long before that, however he 58 year old Princeton Township resident whose home is at 1015 Mercer Road, must face the court again on further charges. On November 4, he an has a date to stand trial on ac cusations that he was the lea der of a $20 million interstate gambling ring. A Federal grand jury indicted him and 55 others on such a charge late in 1969.

Union County also wants DeCavalcante to put in an appearance to answer a stolen gun charge. No date has been set for that hearing.

The sentence imposed on the wholesale plumbing supply dealer was one of the harshest in the continuing drive against those who are allegedly members of the Cosa Nostra. In many instances, separate sentences have been ordered to run concurrently rather than consecutively. When the judge reached the decision to have DeCavalcante serve his terms consecutively, his sentence totalled 15 years rather than five.

LECTURERS NAMED

For Second Stieglitz Series. John Szarkowski, Director of the Department of Photography of The Museum of Modern Art, will be the first of four lecturers in the second series of the Alfred Stieglitz Memorial Lecturers, sponsored by David H McAlpin, Class of 1920.

Mr. Szarkowski will speak Tuesday evening at 8:30 in McCormick Hall 101 — where all the lectures will be given. His topic will be, "Views on Contemporary Photography". He will speak in conjunction with an exhibition of his own work together with an exhibition organized by him for the Museum of Modern Art.

The three other lecturers, their dates and subject are: Paul Caponigro, photographer and teacher, Nov. 3, "Let's Look at Some Photographs"; A. Hyatt Mayor, former curator of prints, Metropolitan Museum of Modern Art, Nov. 17, "Architecture and the Photographer"; and Eliot Porter, well-known photographer, Feb. 16, "Attributes of Successful Color Photography."

Accompanying exhibitions will be held in the Morrison Gallery of the Art Museum: Photography: Current Report II, Oct. 6-Nov. 1, Photographs by Paul Caponigro, Nov. 4-20; and Photographs by Eliot Porter, Feb. 3-28. They will be open to the public.

Mr. Szarkowski is presently teaching at the Museum on the History of Photography for graduate students at NYU. Since 1962, he has directed more than 20 exhibitions at the Museum of Modern Art. His most recent book, "Bellocq: Storyville Portraits," will be published this fall.

MISS CHILDRESS HERE

To Speak at Youth Center. Alice Childress the playwright will speak on "Black Artists in the American Theatre" next Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Princeton Youth Center.

Miss Childress' talk is part of the current lecture series at the Center. It is free, and open to all.

The playwright won an Obie Award in 1956 for her play "Trouble in Mind." The play was presented last year at Princeton High School and Mrs. Carolya Adams, who played in the production, will introduce Miss Childress on Thursday evening. Another Childress play, "Wine in the Wilderness," will be presented

Editor's Note: Since its inception in 1952, TOWN TOPICS' "Why I Plan to Vote" series has placed primary emphasis on candidates running for municipal office in Princeton. Exceptions are made for the gubernatorial, congressional and presidential races, because of their transcending importance. However, the slates of candidates seeking office at the county level — ranging from clerk and sheriff to freeholder and legislature — are so numerous that space is not available over and above that which is allocated to this feature every fall.

MARTIN LOMBARDO and JOE MOORE feel we must listen to our citizens. We must plan for Princeton's needs. We must act to solve problems such as...

What are we doing to help our municipal employees, our senior citizens, and our young families to continue to live in Princeton? How can we ease the housing burden which is driving out these groups of residents?

We need more municipal leaders who are willing to make their voices heard.

MAN GRABS $22

From Movie Cashier. A tall, thin man between 20 and 25 walked up to the cashier's cage at the Princeton Playhouse at 7:22 Sunday evening but instead of buying a ticket, suddenly reached behind the glass and grabbed a handful of dollar bills.

Manager Richard Knight called the police who in turn broadcast a description of the suspect last seen running toward Witherspoon Street. Sgt. Theodore Lewis and his squad converged on the area but were unsuccessful in their search.

It was later determined that the thief had grabbed 22 one-dollar bills.

RABIES CLINICS SET

For Borough and Township. The Boards of Health of the Township and Borough will hold free clinics for the vaccination of dogs from 4 to 6 p.m., October 12-16 at Community Park School.

TO PICK UP NEWSPAPERS

For "Recycling." Zero Population Growth representatives will pick up bundled newspapers this Saturday noon (rain date: October 17) from the area bounded by Nassau, Harrison and Lake Carnegie.

Bundles will be recycled, thereby—according to ZPG—cutting air pollution from burning, fighting water pollution because pulp mills are big polluters, says ZPG, saving forests (one ton of newsprint equals 17 trees) and helping Princeton's collection burden.

First-Class Protection

The English Speaking Union (Princeton branch of the family tree), faced with taking a charter flight of high-school kids to Scotland next June on an exchange program, has come up with an idea whose brilliance rivals that of the Crown Jewels.

Invite a couple of cops to go along as guests. And a couple of people from the Princeton Hospital staff, too.

Invitations have been extended to both Borough and Township to select a police officer to join the group. And to the hospital to send a staff member. Fare would be paid, but the municipality would have to support the officer in Great Britain.

While in Great Britain, he could study police operations, look over Scotland Yard and exchange professional information with the British police, suggests the Union. He could also thwart whatever hi-jackers showed up aloft.

"We'll consider it," commented Township Mayor John D. Wallace Monday, "our attitude is generally favorable."

Why I Plan to Vote

REPUBLICAN

By Barbara Donaldson

Mrs. Coleman duP. Donaldson, 162 Library Place, is captain of the Borough's county committee for the Republicans. A past board member of the Princeton United Fund and past president of the Princeton Nursery School, she was on the committee that established the agreement between the United Fund and Red Cross to combine fund-raising activities.

P[illegible] on Borough voters must get [illegible]ty confused these days by the pro[illegible]ation of Democratic organizations — P[illegible]n Demo[illegible] Asso[illegible]tion, Princeton Community D[illegible] Organization, the County Democratic Committee and the Movement for a New Congress. (In case of raised eyebrows, as this group being included, I quote from the Daily Princetonian of September 22, 1970: "Voter registration [illegible]s Thursday in New Jersey and the group (Movement for a new Congress) is spending the last three days on an intensive drive in Trenton and Lawrence Township to register likely Democratic voters." (Emphasis mine.)

The table of organization of the Republican Party in Mercer County is pretty straightforward and goes from county committee to municipal committee. Supporting the Borough and Township committees with manpower and money for campaigns is the Republican Club of Princeton.

The philosophic thrust is aimed at offering for election to office candidates who are concerned with what's best for Princeton, taking into account the diversity of the community, which is not all liberal nor all conservative, not all University nor all business, not all children nor all adult. The Borough Republican Committee is not trying to force a political philosophy on the community — its concern is the best candidates for Princeton.

Charles Taggart and J. V. Skillman, when they agreed to stand for election to Borough Council, brought excellent qualifications with them, since added to by education about the job.

Charlie, a twelve year resident of the Township and Borough, is assistant dean of the Princeton University Graduate College; Skillie, a life-long Princeton resident, has his own painting business and has recently bought Morris Maple & Son; Charlie looks out on Nassau Street from the east side, Skillie from the west.

In order to become more knowledgable about Princeton's problems and to add to their understanding of what has been done or proposed, they have met in the middle of that road and talked with members of the community who are wrestling with these problems.

Under a schedule of information meetings that Jack Yeoman set up, all three Republican candidates (the two Borough and Charlie Meyer in the Township) have talked singly or together with Don Barr about Princeton's recreation program, Ted Vial about Princeton Community Housing and housing in general, Don Harney about sewer and incinerator problems, Kathy Edwards about the black community, and Bill Kight about drug use, abuse, and possible solutions.

These citizens don't claim to have all the answers; they have been involved, though, and they have been extremely courteous about sharing the facts with our candidates.

I can't presume to tell you what stands they will take on the above problems, plus many others, that face the community — each is his own man and each is pledged to work with

DEMOCRATIC

By Leonard M. Berry

Dr. Leonard M. Berry, 80 Jefferson Road, has been a practicing physician in Princeton for almost 30 years. He has run twice for Borough Council on the Democratic ticket, both times unsuccessfully. His chief interests have been in youth, welfare and recreation.

I plan to vote for Martin Lombardo and Joe Moore for Borough Council because both men have demonstrated a high degree of thoughtful, responsible concern for the town in which they grew up — in particular, for the well being and guidance of Princeton's young people.

At a time when stridency too frequently marks debate over youth, their outlook could bring to government a voice sorely needed to be heard — one speaking for mutual understanding and forbearance.

Joe Moore, assistant dean of students at the University, has responsibilities in that office which bring him into close and daily contact with today's often bewildering higher education scene. He is the second black educator at Princeton to attain the rank of dean.

In the town, under his guidance for the past year, the Princeton Youth Center has sought to encourage youthful attitudes of responsibility and leadership through a variety of projects.

Last year, thanks largely to his initiatives, the Youth Center was completely renovated physically, with the aim of enhancing its attractiveness both to its young users and the community at large. This winter, the Youth Center will become the locale of a new program, developed under Moore's direction, through which selected high school pupils will be able to expand their educational opportunities in classes conducted at the Center.

Like his running mate, Joe is a graduate of Princeton High School. He received his bachelor's degree from Central State University in Ohio and his M.A. from Newark State College. Prior to returning to Princeton and his University post he worked with the Kilmer Job Corps Center, and was Assistant Director of the Action Bound "School Within A School" Program in Trenton High School.

The other man on this year's Democratic Borough ticket, Martin Lombardo, has for many years displayed an active involvement with the problems of his hometown at every level. One year ago, in his first bid for the Borough Council, he narrowly missed victory in one of the closest election contests in Princeton's history.

He currently directs National Youth Affairs for the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, a phase of MS's work that he helped to develop through a pilot effort here in central New Jersey.

His contributions to his home town have been manifest in many ways — ranging from the Hospital Fete to the Chamber Orchestra to the Human Rights Commission. Without question, however, one of his most deeply felt commitments has been to youth — as evidenced, for example, in the many volunteer hours he has put in with local civic programs.

Educated in Princeton's public and parochial schools—and still maintaining close ties with the high school — Marty is also a graduate of Trenton Junior College and Rider College. Before joining the National MS Society, he was affiliated with the N.J. Department of Law and Public Safety.

Both Joe Moore and Martin Lombardo know Princeton — and know it intimately, as only

THE FARR HARDWARE STORE ABOUT 1907: The pre-Civil War building stood at Nassau and Mercer Streets until it was razed in 1912. Parked on the unpaved street is Farr's 2-cylinder International Harvester, the first motor-driven delivery wagon in Princeton and one of the few in the county.

Farr Hardware to Close—After 226 Years of Serving Princeton

All appearances to the contrary, Farr Hardware Store at 138 Nassau Street is the direct descendant of an ironmonger's shop established in 1744 at the corner of today's Nassau and Mercer Streets. When Farr Hardware closes at the end of this year — 226 years later — the line ends.

"I lament the fact that the hardware store will be no more," Harry A. Farr II said this week. "This is an old-fashioned business. We are one of the last in New Jersey."

Sunburned and healthy, looking younger than his 72 years, he sat in his austere little office that has a skylight for a window. The walls hold photographs of the old store at Nassau and Mercer and of Harry Farr Senior.

Harry A. Farr II

A native of Princeton, a graduate of the public schools and, in 1921, of Princeton University, he has served on Borough Council and as president of the Borough school board. He was a member of the board when the schools were integrated.

"A Quality Store." "The thing that I lament the most," he was saying thoughtfully, "is - well, my father wanted the store to be of service to the community and we have always tried to conduct ourselves in that way. we've tried to have a quality store, to stand behind, as any reputable dealer should — and really tried to treat a customer as he would like to be treated.

"But we can't do the things we used to do. Manpower is short. Young men aren't interested in this kind of business. For the past 10 years we haven't been able to be of service to the community as we used to and would like to. For that reason alone, it will be sort of a relief to be out of the business —."

He left his job as a civil engineer in Philadelphia in the mid - Twenties to manage the firm when his father became ill. He has been the head of a typically deceptive Princeton business — with it's modest store front belieing the scope of its operations.

"I have spent so much of my time with architects," Mr. Farr said. "We have furnished hardware all over the eastern United States. A good two-thirds of our business never touched the store — it was shipped from the factory to the job."

Generations Ago. Looking at the photograph of the old store, he said, "Older people and Father — who remembered things so well — have told me that tract at Nassau and Mercer was settled and built by an English ironmonger in 1744. He established a trading center — they didn't call them hardware stores in those days — and supplied the farming community. I've never been able to trace his name.

"It's said that during the Battle of Princeton, breastworks were thrown there, across what is now Nassau Street. There are old peoples' tales that the family had to feed the troops — I guess they fed both sides!"

In 1806, Mr. Farr relates, an old Dutch family purchased the business. "The name was Hendrickson and there are quite a few descendants — and they spell the name several ways. It was their's up until just after the Civil War, when old Colonel William C. Vandewater bought it. In 1886 my father became his partner. The colonel lived at Vandeventer and Wiggins Street — on the right hand corner as you go up, and we lived just across the way at 42 Wiggins. The colonel died about 1900 and soon after, father bought out his interest. In 1902 the company was incorporated as Farr Hardware."

The old building was torn down in late in 1912 or early 1913 — about a year after the Farr Company moved to 138 Nassau. "The original expectation was to put the Battle Monument there," Mr. Farr commented. Then the Princeton Battle Monument Association got the idea, and I think it was a good one, to build it where it is now. For the size of that monument, there wasn't really enough room.

"In those days, Mercer St. came directly into Nassau Street instead of curving into University Place. The Priest building Town Topics is in now used to be right up to the sidewalk on Nassau, and they moved it back. All in all, the changes have opened up and improved that end of town."

Farr Hardware's present building has had its ups and downs: For many years it was a pleasant, two-storied rooming house for students. Fred Struve raised the roof one floor and added stores on the ground floor. Years later, in 1957 Harry Farr II subtracted the third floor and half of the second floor, almost completely rebuilding the premises.

In the old days Mr. Struve's Arcade movie theatre flourished where the bowling alley is today, hard by the Farr entrance. Mr. Farr Senior and other owners filled in Vandeventer Pond in the rear where the municipal parking lots are now. They needed the space.

Two Farms. Thinking back to his grandfather's days in Princeton, Mr. Farr says with a modern businessman's awe, "Their two farms were next to each other and extended from Cherry Hill Road across from "Tusculum," John Witherspoon's old farm, to Harry's Brook on the Princeton-Kingston Road, adjoining the Gulick Farm, where Bert Gulick lives yet.

"Route 206 goes through the Andrews' farm, and my grandfather Farr's meadow included the land all around All Saints' Chapel. They certainly would have had a fortune in real estate today — "

Harry's Brook may be named from a Farr family joke about the day when Harry senior as a small boy fell into the brook while he was fishing and was rescued by an amused uncle.

Harry Farr senior, although his son is loath to "publicize" his family, grew up to be an extremely inventive man. He developed a number of things, improvising and improving on mechanical items.

"In those days there was a very close relationship between the dealer and manufacturer. Mr. Farr went on "Father knew them all. At about that time he was quite a steam engineer and built a whole new type of condenser for the Stanley Steamer. He took it out to Cleveland where he raced a White Steamer — and won. I remember when he had the Ford Motor Car business. He sold quite a few. That was back when the dealer didn't have to handle repairs."

A Boy's Life. Mr. Farr has many pleasant memories of the early 1900's. Growing up with his brother Richard, now deceased, and his sister, Mrs. Helen Richardson, who has retired from an administrative post at Wellesley College, he remembers Princeton as "much more leisurely in those days."

He sang in the Episcopal choir, went skating on Vandeventer's Pond and swimming in the Millstone at "the sheep wash" where there was a sandy bottom. Sometimes the boys swam in Lake Carnegie, "although you weren't supposed to because of the sewer fields there." And there were baseball teams all over town, north, west and east.

"Many's the fish I caught in Lake Carnegie as a youngster," he reminisces. "It used to be a lovely lake and a great recreation place. The Lake Carnegie Association stocked it with bass and pike.

"Three times as many people used the lake for skating than do now. There used to be a canoe house where there were about 200 or more canoes for hire, and people paddled all the way up the river. There was an old motor scow that a retired farmer from Kingston used when he cut the weeds and old lily pads in the lake.

The lake was deeper then, and I think it has been dredged only once since — by the WPA, perhaps.

Integration. Mr. Farr served on the Borough Board of Education for 12 years. The year before he became board president in 1948, the schools were integrated.

"That was one of the greatest jolts that ever happened here!" he remembers. "We had a great board in those days. I felt it was a privilege to serve.

"Dr. George Shull was president. He had a keen brain — he developed the primrose and the hybrid corn. He lived on Jefferson Road at the top of the hill where he had a flag pole and a big garden.

"There was John Hun, a master teacher and a man of great integrity. And Prof. Loomis's widow. We had sterling people. Irving Mershon was clerk of the board - all such able people. B. Woodhull Davis was superintendent of schools. He was a very able, conscientious and smart schoolman.

"When we integrated, we beat the change in the New Jersey constitution by one year. We had built the Quarry Street School, and it was the finest building in our whole system, but the colored people were not happy with it. They didn't want to be held apart and many of us agreed.

High School Integrated Early. "When we decided to integrate the grade schools, the high school had been integrated since the second year I was a student there.

"We could have done it geographically, but we dicided that would not solve the problem. So we decided that kindergarten through about 4th grade would go to one school, the rest to the other. The teachers were integrated in the same way. We decided to let the chips fall."

Mr. Farr sat back and smiled. "We had no trouble. There was, it's true, a big squawk, and letters to the board threatening to 'take my children out of the school system.' But the first day of school was peaceful. There were only two kids taken out and they were back the next year.

"We had no busing problem. The Borough was small enough that we didn't need buses. And we were fortunate

No "Princeton Plan." "There was no 'Princeton Plan.' There never had been. It never had that name until eight or nine years after the schools were integrated. I was there and I know about it if anybody does!"

Mr. Farr served on the Princeton Housing Authority when the Hageman Homes were built. "I think we did a constructive job. We certainly tried to." He was appointed by Mayor P. Mackay Sturges to the Borough Zoning Board of Adjustment and later to the Planning Board.

Now he's on the verge of retirement. His family is grown. His first wife died of cancer; he has remarried and lives at Rossmoor, whose residents delight and intrigue him. He also has a house in Florida.

There are remarks that key note his outlook: "You know, I've worked like the devil," he said with a sudden laugh. Then, thinking of the old days here, "It really doesn't seem so long ago!"

SUPERINTENDENT NAMED

For Post Office Here. Postmaster John L. Dilworth has announced the promotion of James J. Davidson to the position of Station Superintendent at the Palmer Square Post Office. Mr. Davidson has been with the Princeton Post Office for more than 30 years and a supervisor since 1964.

All window services except postage meter settings and international money orders are now available at the West Windsor Office Monday through Friday, Mr. Dilworth said. He also noted that there are still a few Post Office Boxes for rent at the Alexander Road office. A two year waiting period is required for a box on Palmer Square.

The new telephone number to use for all postal business is 452-9044.

Thus they have seen the town change greatly, and they are aware — as reasonable men must be — that even greater change is yet to come, and is, in fact, the essence of our present society. They want to bring on that change wisely with proper planning and some hard thinking — and some even harder listening to the people. Theirs is a voice that could add richly to Princeton's governing body.

Firemen to March Friday

Princeton's three volunteer fire companies will hold their annual parade and inspection Friday, beginning at 6 p.m. Formerly a late June affair, the event will now be held each fall.

The parade will begin at the Hook and Ladder Co. firehouse on North Harrison Street and proceed north on Nassau to Borough Hall, where service awards will be presented and a memorial service held. Borough Councilmen and Township Committeemen will also conduct an inspection of the men and equipment.

REPLACEMENT NAMED

To West Windsor School Board. William Watt has been appointed by the Board of Education of the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Mrs. Margaret Bacon.

Mr. Watt, who lives with his wife and three children at 60 Montgomery Street, Princetnn Junction, is a chemist with the American Can Company in Princeton. He has had extensive contacts with the schools, having served in various offices of the PTA and on the Citizens Advisory Committee on Planning the Secondary School.

Mr. Watt will take the oath of office at a special meeting of the board on Tuesday.

OPPORTUNITIES LISTED

For Volunteers. "Volunteer Opportunities," a 20-page booklet compiled by the Princeton Area Council of Community Services, has just been published.

Free copies are available at the public libraries in Princeton, Hightstown and West Windsor, at church offices, at the main offices of First National Bank and Princeton Bank and Trust, at ETS, the Princeton Chamber of Commerce, the Student Volunteer Committee of Princeton University, and at the Council office, 575 Ewing Street.

MS DRIVE BEGUN

Dr. Greenblatt is Chairman. The Multiple Sclerosis Service Organization of New Jersey, Inc. will conduct its annual fund raising drive in the Borough of Princeton, under the Chairmanship of Doctor Manuel Greenblatt of Princeton.

Dr. Greenblatt will be aided by the Key Club boys of Notre Dame High School of Trenton who wil conduct a door-to door canvass in the Borough. The drive will continue through the month of October.

'TIME OUT FOR MAN' Preview Scheduled Here

Funded by the largest single grant ever given by the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, 32 Nassau Street, has developed a program called the National Humanities Series, Time Out For Man."

The series, now in its second year, will take programs in the humanities to more than 50 small communities all over the United States. Three teams of professors and performers will visit each participating community and spend several days there presenting programs applying humanistic values and insights to the problems and situations of contemporary American life.

Previews of series programs will be presented in the Princeton area prior to their going on tour. "Justice . . . Trial and Error," will appear at Princeton Inn College on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. This program, created by Mereld Keys the chairman of the Philosophy Department at the State University of New York at Potsdam, features Keys, actors Cliff Goodwin and Ben Bayol, and actress Wyetta Turner in an exploration of various concepts of justice. Material will be drawn from Hammurabi, the Bible, King Arthur, John Locke, Thomas Jefferson, Henry David Thoreau and Jean Anouth.

"Face to Face" will preview at Princeton Inn College at 7:30 on Monday and at Rider College on Tuesday at 8 p.m. This program will use dance, folk songs, the visual arts, poetry, drama and commentary to explore how and why people create.

The presentation team includes Assistant Professor Larry Friedlander of the English Department at Stanford University; Judy Sullivan, an instructor in art history at Wasburn University; actor, Richard Rekow; and actress folk singer, Sandy Johnson. All programs are open to the puhlic with no admission charge.

Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, Princeton Branch, 8 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Janet Townsend, 145 Hickory Court. The agenda will include a general business meeting and the presentation of a variety of peace projects which need member support. Following this there will be an open discussion on violence in American society, with special focus on the crash of recent bombings. The meeting is open to all interested persons.

American Association of Retired Persons, Princeton Chapter 459, 2 p.m., Thursday, at the Dorothea House. Mrs. Sculler Christian will speak on "Nepal and its People."

Wyman Club, an organization for wives of undergraduate and graduate students at Princeton University, 8 p.m., Tuesday, in the Engineering Quad Lounge. A wig demonstration and fashion show will be presented by Tavar Tresses and Bambergers. Refreshments and sign-ups for all activities and interest groups will follow. Call 924-1563 for ride or information.

Sierra Club, 8:15 p.m., Monday in 10 McCosh Hall on the University Campus near Washington Road. A color film, "Wilderness Alps of Stehekin," which tells the story of two boys and their father exploring the rugged mountain range of the Northern Cascades in Washington, will be shown. The program will also include a talk by Peter Borelli, Eastern Representative of the club.

The club's next outing is a trip to see hawk migration flights at Racoon Ridge Saturday. Those planning to attend should meet at the Blairstown Diner on Route 94 at 8:30 a.m. Bring field glasses, a field guide, lunch and a beverage. The trip will involve a three mile hike. For more information, call Tom Sutherland at 924-5258.

Music Club, Wednesday, October 14, at the home of Mrs. Thomas Cook, Kingston. The program will open with Five Piano Pieces by Alkan played by Frances Wendt. Schubert's Octet Opus 166 for strings and woodwinds will be the concluding work.

The Princeton Ballet Society has named three new trustees and elected officers for the year. Joining the Board are Mrs. Charles W. Worley, Mrs. Peter W. Schreiber and Thomas L. Matthews.

Newly elected as officers are George C. Ford, president; Mrs. Lee P. Neuwirth, vice-president; L. Wendell Estey, treasurer; Mrs. Robert H. Woodside, recording secretary, and Mrs. Worley, corresponding secretary.

The Amateur Astronomers' Association of Princeton will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Room A 07 of Princeton University's Jadwin Hall (in the Physics Department). The speaker will be Dr. M. G. Tomasko, a research associate of the Astrophysical Sciences Department of Princeton University. Dr. Tomasko's topic will be: "The Latest Flight of Stratoscope II on March 26, 1970."

The Newcomers Club will meet this Thursday at 12:30 at the YWCA to hear a talk on the "Ups and Downs of the Bustle." If interested in attending, call Mrs. Louis P. Scibetta, 68 Hickory Court, Rocky Hill. For babysitting, call Mrs. Guy Beakley, 799-2368.

Boy Scout Troop 88, 7:30 p.m., Friday, at the United Methodist Church. The parents' night meeting will feature a Court of Honor, at which the scouts will receive the advancements and merit badges they have earned during the summer. The presentations will be made by Arthur Weiner the retiring scoutmaster. The new scoutmaster, Robert Simpson, will present the program for the coming year.

Harvard Business School Club of Princeton, 8 p.m., Monday, at the Nassau Club. "Art as an Investment," is the topic for this meeting. Values, vogues and trends with the stress on modern art, will be discussed by Charlotte Thomson, Harvard Professor of Art. The future of the publicly-owned art trading company will be explored by a pioneer in that field, Robert B. Haie, Director of the Sovereign American Art Corporation. Art enthusiasts are welcome.

Arts Council of Princeton has elected officers for 1970-71 and new members of the board. Mrs. Neal W. O'Connor will lead the group as president, with L. Wendell Estey as vice president, Jeremiah Ford as vice-president, Leslie L. Vivian Jr. as secretary and Mrs. Herbert Rosenthal, treasurer.

New members of the board are R. Donald Barr, Mrs. Robert Cawley, Mrs. Les Damon, Mr. Philetus H. Holt, 3rd, Mrs. Richard G. Poole, Mrs. David K. Reeves, Mrs. Herbert S. Ruben, Mrs. Sabatino Russo Jr., and Barry Snyder.

Plans are under consideration for a one day celebration of the performing and visual arts, in the Princeton community, some time in May.

Is there anything God can't heal?

No matter what the verdict, nothing is beyond the healing power of divine Love.

The Psalmist wrote, "Bless the Lord, O my soul. . . who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases."

Christian Science is helping people today to find the fulfillment of this promise in the healing of even so-called incurable diseases.

If you would like to know more about spiritual healing, you'll enjoy hearing the Bible Lesson to be read in our church this Sunday.

GRAPHICS ON VIEW

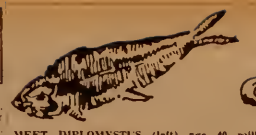
Prize-Winners and Others. Now on display at McCarter Theatre is a graphics show, sponsored by the Princeton Art Association and juried by Stephen Martin. Mr. Martin chose Margaret Kennard Johnson's collograph "Old City Wall" for first place. It is a prime example of her mastery of the use of positive and negative space and forms within forms.

Second place went to Judith K. Brodsky's "Living Machine," a colorful intaglio etching that appeals to the intellect. Henrietta Susser's "Dawn Sounds" won third place. Aptly named it captures the mood and mystery of dawn, although abstract, it conveys the presence of mists and a rising sun.

"On Strike" by Yolande Peyns won an honorable mention. The timely subject matter of this etching, angry workmen, is executed with the draftsmanship and technique of an old master. Ann Gross's collograph "No More Books" also won an honorable mention and exhibits the fine sense of design always present in her work.

Some of the other prints in the show that deserve viewing are: "Boston Common" by Joan Needham, "Sands of Time" by Helga Nergaard and "Strange Fossils" by Marie Starken.

A reception will be held from



MEET DIPLOMYSTUS (left) age 40 million, and an old trilobite, age maybe 500,000 million, from the fosil collection at The Eye for Art, Spring Street.

5:00 to 7:00 on Thursday, October 8th for the artists, exhibitors and the public.

New England Landscapes. Elizabeth Leary is showing some acrylic paintings at Gallery 100. Like Wyeths and Sheeler's, her paintings reflect her feelings about the spare New England landscape. The austerity is most apparent in "Essex Co Op" and "Old Red Barn Goes House." This reviewer found the soft brown grass silhouetted against the simple mass of pond and sky in "Plum Island Grasses" especially appealing.

Also at the Gallery are two collages by Paul Ritts. One contains a colonial figure superimposed over geometric shapes. He seems to be painting enigmatically at a red circle. The other also uses ingenuous figures. Biblical in feeling, glued over a city scape background. These are well designed and one enjoys speculating on Mr. Ritts' intent. A floral, painted in soft colors and composed of floating shapes by Mary Ritts, is charming.

At the Youth Center. The Princeton Youth Center is showing the work of three artists: Frank Bridgewater, Billy Morrow Jackson and Carl Overton, Mr. Bridgewater's pastel "Nina Limone" shows the delicacy and sensitivity important to portraiture. "Tranquil," a silk screen by Mr. Overton, is well composed of curvilinear forms reminiscent of African sculpture.

On loan from the Fine Arts Gallery are eight lithographs executed by Billy Morrow Jackson entitled "A Graphic Response to the Civil Rights Drama." They are protest drawings of superior quality.

"The prometheus Ballet" is based on the ancient Greek myth. Mr. Jackson conceived the drawing as a ballet using costumes and masks to further the allegorical content. The Prometheus figure is shown as a chained black man holding a fiery torch in one hand and a stylized mask of Martin Luther King in front of his face. The vulture symbolically tearing at his liver represents hate and prejudice. All of these lithographs are powerful statements motivated by strong thought and emotion.

At the Fund for Peace Education Office, 163 Nassau Street several area artists are exhibiting their work in a show entitled "Artists for Peace." The professional work ranges from delicate drawings by Anne Woolfolk to bold powerful lithographs by Jacob Landau. In a woodcut by Thomas George, meandering line delineates the subtle forms of a soaring mountain.

Cartoons by Clarence Brown, a Princeton professor in Russian literature, show gentle humore in depicting the human condition. The military establishment, however, brings out sardonic bitterness as seen in the two cartoons created just for this show.

GEODES AND TRILOBITES

At The Eye for Art. Exquisite crystal forms encased in long-cooled bubbles of lava are on view at the Eye for Art, Spring Street. Known as Geodes, they're said to bring good luck.

Formed during a volcanic eruption during prehistoric times, the geodes are from the American west. Some are hollow, with a lining of crystals, others are solidly filled.

The Eye for Art has also put on display rock impressions of prehistoric fish. Some are ancestors of the herring and are known as diplomystus humilis, and dated during the Eocene period. Others are the far more ancient trilobites, found in Utah rock and dated at about 500,000 million years ago.

Mrs. Helen Benedict went out to Wyoming with one suitcase last summer, and came back with six filled with rocks.

"I don't know how that plane ever got over the mountains." The geodes range in price from $1.35 to $25; and the ancient fish impressions are $18 to $45. The fish were found by paleontologist Wallace Ulrich in the Fossil Syncline Lake in southwest Wyoming near Kemmerer.

Eye for Art is open daily except Sunday and Monday.

PHIZ REVIVED

At The Drawing Room. English illustrations and cartoons of the 19th Century may be seen at The Drawing Room, 33 Witherspoon Street, second floor.

Laurie Vance Johnsan has assembled works by political cartoonist H. K. (Phiz) Browne, writer-illustrator George Du Maurier, Sir John Tenniel of "Alice in Wonderland" fame, Walter Crane, Richard Doyle and John Leech.

The Drawing Room is open from 11 to 5 on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday; Saturday 10 to 1.

DRAWING CLASS OPEN

At Art Association. Anne Woolfolk, who currently is teaching a drawing class at the Princeton Art Association, is a graduate of the Fine Arts Department of Newcomb College, Tulane University.

She studied graphics under the direction of George Rickey, Harold Paris and James Steg and painting under Pat Travino and Harold Carney. At the time of her graduation, she received the Quadrent Club Award of the City of New Orleans for her achievement in etching.

Take an Art Break

A bit of pre Columbian art might go down rather well after your lunch sandwich.

The Princeton University Art Museum, with you and your sandwich in mind, has set up a series of ten-minute talks on art for people who have a little time to spend between the end of lunch and the return to the desk.

The talks will begin next Friday, October 16. There will be one at 12:40 and a re run at 1:40, and the subject will be "Mrs. Reverdy Johnson," the painting by Thomas Sully. (Pre Columbian art will be along later in the series.)

Everybody is invited, and the brief talks are free. The Museum is on campus, behind Nassau Hall and Theatre Intime.

PEOPLE In The News

Simon Marcson, 38 Marion Road associate professor of sociology at Rutgers University has published an article in the summer edition of the California Management Review, a publication by the Regents of the University of California.

The article "Utilization of Scientific and Technical Manpower in Industry" deals with managerial problems arising in the research and development organizations of scientific and engineering manpower. Dr. Marcson recommends the scientific concern with pure research and individual investigation should be included in a corporation's production considerations.

A member of the Rutgers University faculty since 1955, Dr. Marcson specializes in the sociology of science and scientists in government. A former consultant to government industry and the United Nations, he is widely published.

Dr. Stuart M. Ellerstein, 38 Terhune Road, was an invited speaker at the Symposium on Analytical Calorimetry held at the 160th National ACS Meeting last month. The paper will appear as a chapter in the book "Analytical Calorimetry," Vol. 2, published by the Plenum Press.

Sandra S. Wohlschlegel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Wohlschlegel, 42 Markham Road, has enrolled in Washington College, Chestertown, Md., as a freshman. She is a graduate of Princeton High School.

Three Princeton area girls are freshmen at Swarthmore College. Helen Rayner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pearce T. Rayner, Jr., Gulick Road, and Carol Borowitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Borowitz, Brunswick Pike, are both graduates of Princeton High School. Rebecca Bushnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Bushnell, 200 Mercer Street, is a graduate of Princeton Day School.

Kenneth R. Coleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse C. Coleman Jr., South Mill Road, Princeton Junction, has been promoted to Army sergeant upon graduation from the Non-commissioned Officer Candidate School at Ft. Benning, Ga. Sgt. Coleman entered the Army in January of this year. He was selected for the course under a specialized Army program that grants rapid promotions to outstanding individuals.

Miss Judith Ann Herd was appointed youth director of the YWCA at the board of directors' September meeting. Miss Herd began her duties on September 14, and will be officially welcomed at a reception following the board meeting open to membership on Monday, October 26.

As youth director, she will supervise all classes, clubs, programming and special events planned for the younger members of the association.

A graduate of the Pennsylvania State University with a Bachelor of Fine Arts, Miss Herd has organized cultural programs for the mentally retarded, the aged, a Head Start program, college students, and the Northwest Indians, and has worked with federal and county prisons.

While working toward her degree, she worked with PROBE Experimental College, the university theatre, the opera workshop and the student union. She is a concert pianist and has sung professionally with the Lafayette College Musical Arts Society.

T. C. Wayne Roberts Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. W. Roberts, Stony Brook Lane, is a new student at St. Paul's School, Concord, Mass.

Beatrice Manuel, 197 Varsity Avenue, is one of 25 Wilmington College students studing in Vienna, Austria, this fall. She will remain there until December 12.

TOWN TOPICS goes into every home and place of business in Princeton. By their own figures, no other newspaper does half as well.

Martin Liples, manager of Western Union here since 1954, was coronated a 33rd degree Mason in Milwaukee last month. The 33rd is the highest degree, and can only be conferred by the Supreme Council. Out of a total membership of 550,000 in the country, there are only about 3,000 who have attained this rank.

Mr. Liples started with Western Union in October 1929. He was promoted to delivery clerk and advanced to night manager in Scranton; delivery supervisor in Allentown, Pa., in 1941; delivery supervisor in Trenton in 1943; and then to Princeton.

Dr. Selden D. Bacon, Penn Lyle Road, Princeton Junction, director of the Rutgers University Center of Alcohol Studies, has been named the winner of the 1970 Recognition Award of the North American Association of Alcoholism Programs. Dr. Bacon is the ninth recipient of the awards, which recognizes achievement in meeting problems of alcoholism.

Dr. Bacon has been associated with the Center of Alcohol Studies and its predecessors since 1943. At that time, the center was housed in the Laboratory of Applied Physiology at Yale University. He became director in 1949, and the center moved to New Brunswick in 1962.

E. Russell Eggers, formerly of Princeton, has been elected president and chief operating officer of Bendix International. In his new position, he will direct the firm's overseas activities, including export sales, foreign licensing programs and manufacturing operations.

Mr. Eggers joined Bendix in May, 1968, from his former position as vice president and representative of the Chase Manhattan Bank in Geneva, Switzerland. He is a graduate of Wesleyan University in Connecticut and studies as a Rhodes scholar at Oxford University.

Mr. Eggers was previously executive vice-president of Bendix International, responsible for manufacturing facilities in Latin America and Spain.

Archibald S. Alexander Jr., 61 Westcott Road, has been appointed a lecturer in law at the Rutgers University School of Law in Newark. The appointment came shortly after Mr. Alexander had sponsored a proposal that an experimental clinical seminar in correction be taught at the school.

As developed by Mr. Alexander and Professors Richard Chused and Steven Gifis, both of the Rutgers Law School, 10 law students will be placed in the state prison and probation department facilities to provide civil legal services to prison inmates and persons serving probation sentences.

Mr. Alexander, associated with the Newark law firm of Lowenstein, Sandler, Brochin, Kohl and Fisher, is a member of the Governor's Tax Policy Committee. He also serves on the Family Court Study Commission, is a member of the Mercer County chapter of the Morrow Association on Correction, and serves as first vice president of the Board of Managers of the State Prison.

Last week we introduced our Republican Freeholder Candidates. This week, we should like to mention a pertinent issue.

21 MILLION DOLLARS

In 1960, the Mercer County budget under the machine rule of the Democrats was 8 million dollars. In 1970, still under the same machine rule, the budget has increased almost 200% to 21 million dollars. Cost of living has gone up — but that much?

Do you know what you get for 21 million dollars? Ask yourself.

Our Freeholder candidates are asking for visible government — not the invisible of the past twenty years.

After over 2 decades of machine bossed rule, for a real change, make your vote count and elect all 3 Republican Freeholder candidates.

ONLY by electing all 3 can the machine be broken.

Tigers' Pass Defense Suspect in Saturday's Game at Hanover

A Princeton football team which very nearly went down in history as the first to lose to Columbia in a quarter century heads for Hanover this weekend to face high-regarded Dartmouth. The impressive Indians have been waiting for the past ten months for a chance to reverse last fall's 35 7 defeat in Palmer Stadium which cost them a perfect season.

Saturday's game will be a particularly difficult assignment for the Tigers as they seek the answer to two major questions: can their promising offense be made to sputter as frequently as it was last week-end by a sophnmore dominated Columbia team; and will their rebuilt defensive secondary continue to allow opponents an average of 200 yards through the air? If the Orange and Black cannot come up with the right solution to at least one of these problems, Dartmouth's margin may be celebrated with considerable fire water in the tepee come sundown.

Statistically, Princeton came away from the Columbia game with a satisfactory performance. The Tigers won, 24 22, and their offense peeled off 418 yards — 316 of that figure on the ground.

Defensively, they have yielded a total of only 73 yards rushing to their first two opponents. Unfortunately, however, even when they know they have the other guys bottled up on the ground, they are largely unable to prevent sizeable gains through the air. Since Dartmouth has at least two running backs in All-Ivy John Short and 215 lb. fullback Stu Simms who are better than anyone Rutgers or Columbia can muster, the Tigers' defensive problems at Hanover become readily apparent.

What's the Story on Chasey?

The outcome of the game will hinge, more than on any one factor, on how Dartmouth quarterback Jim Chasey performs. In the loss to Princeton last November, he suffered a shoulder separation and has since undergone two operations.

In a pre-season scrimmage against Vermont, he twisted an ankle and sat out the opener against Massachusetts. Last week, he started against Holy Cross but played only in the first period as the Green rolled to a 50 to 14 drubbing of the inexperienced Crusaders.

In addition to his condition, the question is whether Dartmouth can — for the first time in three years — beat Princeton with Chasey at quarterback. He shared the signal calling duties as a sophomore when the Green lost at Hanover, 34 7, and was the architect of the Indians' eight-game winning streak when they came here last fall. On that occasion he was almost completely dominated by the Tiger defense, led by ends Steve Sikora and Jim Nixon.

A junior, Bill Pollock, and Steve Stetson, a sophomore who quarterbacked the unbeaten Dartmouth freshmen a year ago, are Chasey's replacements. They have seen most of the action in the one-sided victories over Massachusetts and Holy Cross.

Offense Is Varied. Bob Blackman, the veteran Dartmouth coach, employs a multiple T offense which should test the largely rebuilt defensive platoon of the Tigers to the utmost. The Green has almost invariably had a solid running game through the years, reaching the heights in the Ivy League when it can blend long flight passing into its attack.

Defensively, Dartmouth has had to rebuild rather extensively, using a combination of 1969 reserves and four starters from last fall. It was this platoon which Princeton dominated so thoroughly a year ago, and it is on its ability to do so again Saturday that the outcome of the game will hinge.

LIONS CAME TO WIN

And Very Nearly Did. "We worked on our two-point conversion play all week," Columbia's intense young coach Frank Navarro said in low tones of disappointment after the game. "We knew the game would be close, and we thought the ability to make a play like that would mean the difference."

While Navarro refused to accept congratulations at the postgame press conference for having made a far better showing than Princetonians, at least, had anticipated, the fact remains that Columbia football is on the edge of a new era. "We won't have achieved a thing until we win at least one big one," Navarro said, but it was apparent that the Lions who have another good freshman team in the wings — are about to shed the role of a perennial second division team in favor of solid, winning football.

Having escaped with a two point victory and nothing worse physically than a wholesale collection of bruises, Princeton will be the better team for the rugged competition it encountered Saturday. Going for it particularly are the ability to come from behind in the second half, plus the knowledge that it had the stiffest sort of competition while Dartmouth was using mostly reserve players in a romp over Holy Cross.

There were, on the other hand, a whole hatful of debits chargeable against Princeton's

MR. OUTSIDE IS INSIDE: As this photo clearly shows, Hank Bjorklund has crossed the goal line on sweep around right end before he was shoved out of bounds in the Columbia game Saturday. The coffin-corner marker, etched here in black for emphasis, is behind the Tiger halfback's right leg. Fourth-period touchdown broke 14-all tie and helped pave the way for eventual 24-22 triumph. (Bob Matthews Photo)

QUICK LOOK AT DARTMOUTH

OFFENSE: Features running of fullback Stu Simms and All-Ivy John Short behind big line. Quarterback Jim Chasey's performance after injuries remains a major question mark.

DEFENSE: Princeton's hope for winning lies largely on ability of its running game to overmatch Dartmouth defense. This platoon has only four starters from 1969.

CHIEF ASSET: Size, speed and ability are all factors on which Indians can count. Blended with topflight coaching, they may prove a winning combination.

CHIEF PROBLEM: Containing the one-two punch generated by the running of Hank Bjorklund and Doug Blake.

TYPE OF ATTACK. Multiple T, including Wing-T, Slot T and double slot formations.

performance. The Tigers passed up numerous scoring opportunities in the first half as their running game bogged down from poorly executed blocking assignments and their passing wobbled to a 3 for-11 showing.

Defensively, the problem was even greater: all afternoon, they allowed the visitors to make the big third down play, so that three long Columbia scoring drives were kept in motion and would, but for a 30 yard field goal from sophomore Jim Antal, have given the Lions a shattering 22-21 upset. Held to 93 yards on the ground, the New Yorkers amassed 223 in the air and scored touchdowns on unstoppable marches of 57, 52 and 72 yards.

Dartmouth scouts in the press box went back to Hanover with a goodly supply of information on Princeton weaknesses, most notably on the continuing difficulty the Tigers are having in covering deep toward either sideline. Three passes, straight across or interceptions, all by linebacker Pete Boyle, were of immense value, but a 14-for-33 performance. 223 yards and two touchdowns by Columbia sophomore Don Jackson will leave Princeton in a state of major concern as the game with Dartmouth approaches this weekend.

Ivy League Forecast

Princeton over Dartmouth. If pass defense holds up.

Yale over Brown. By wide margin.

Cornell over Penn. Red can move the ball.

Columbia over Harvard. Lions in a close one.

Bjorklund and Blake Star. The Tigers won because their two junior running backs, Hans Bjorklund and Doug Blake, gave as fine a combined performance as any two Princeton ball carriers have on the same day since Cosmo Iacavazzi and Don McKay were performing in the same backfield half a dozen years ago. Bjorklund carried 28 times for 178 yards. Blake 14 for 104 and each scored a picturesque, tackle breaking touchdown. The latter also completed a vital 26 yard pass to split end Pete Hauck late in the game to assure Princeton possession as the clock ran out.

Blake's TD with five minutes gone in the second period was the game's first score. He took a short pass from quarterback Rod Plummer directly across the line of scrimmage, ran for the left sidelines and broke three tackles before reaching the end zone.

The Lions drew even with less than a minutes left in the half, capping a 57-yard march that took just six plays with a 29 yard scoring pass from Jackson to flanker back Jesse Parks. The impressive Columbia sophomore scored all three of the losers' TDs.

Late in the third quarter, Columbia took the lead as Parks ran the final eight yards untouched. Visibly aroused, the Tigers went 71 yards in seven plays, Plummer firing his best pass of the day to Hauck eight yards inside the end zone for the score.

Ground Game Does the Trick. Early in the finai period the home team took the lead for good with a 79 yard march in nine running plays. Bjorklund got the final two, but only after he had been hit back at the 10, spun loose and shot in to the coffin corner (see photo).

Another Princeton drive stalled out on the 13, but Antal's 30 yard gield goal had complete authority to make it 24-14. Columbia stormed back for a TD on a fine pitch to the deep left corner of the end zone from Jackson to Parks and then neatly chopped up the Princeton pass defense again with a two point conversion credited to the same pair.

Having exhausted their times out, the Lions needed the breaks to get a chance to win but they failed to materialize. A dribble kickoff was recovered by Princeton, the Blake-to-Hauck pass was wrested away from the Columbia defender and the victors ran out the final four minutes.

Now the rugged assignment of heating Dartmouth at Hanover confronts the title-minded Princetonians. Neither team appears solid on defense, whereas hoth have above-average ability to move the ball.

It is on the Tigers' occasionally spectacular running game that any belief in their ability to win depends, since it must be consistent enough to take the pressure off their frequently outmanned pass defense. Worth keeping in mind, too, is that the victor will by no means be in the clear for the 1970 championship, nor will the loser be out of the running. Yale, Cornell and Harvard all will help determine the eventual winner in games still to be played.

How Good Are Little Tigers? Trenton Game Should Tell

RON RHODES WITH THE BIG D: Princeton High School defensive end Ron Rhodes (86) leaps high (he's a broad jumper on the track team) to knock down an intended pass from Ewing quarterback Neil Horner to halfback Bill Stevenson. Action took place in second quarter of Little Tigers' 13-8 victory over the Blue Devils. Also in on the play is Princeton's Mark Cuonio (28).

Capravo Has THS Moving. Now in his fourth year, THS coach Frank Capravo has Tren ton moving again after a string of dismal, losing seasons. From an 0 9 his first year, he brought Trenton to a 3 6 mark and then to a fine 6 3 log last fall.

Princeton was one of those

One of several costly Ewing fumbles that the visiting Blue and White did capitalize on led to its first score, when at the end of the first quarter, Mark Cuomo fell on an Ewing fum ble on the hometeam 23. Two plays later, fullback Lawr ence Parker on a twisting run carried to the 7. Loujohn Rossi took it in from the three with 10 57 remaining and Ned Fry's placement was perfect.

Ewing came back to score its lone TD with 1 25 to go in the half. Back to punt for PHS, John Hodge had his kick block ed It slammed into the hide of Ewing's defensive end, Bob Russo. Richard Lauricella, n sophomore center, picked up the loose ball and scampered in for the score from 44 yards out. Quarterback Neil Horner then ran the ball over for a two point conversion and an 8 7 Ewing lead.

The third quarter was score less, as PHS couldn't move of fensively Another Ewing mis take, the dropping of a punt which was recovered by Chris Latham on the Ewing 30, pro vided PHS the break it needed for the winning TD.

PHS moved to the 21, still needing five yards on a fourth down play. Again, Ewing dug its own hole by picking this down to go offside and give PHS an automatic first on the 16.

Rossi, the leading gainer in the game with 87 yards in 20 attempts, cut between his end and off tackle for a clutch run to the Ewing two. After Rich ard Jackson failed on his try to carry it in, Rossi did on the following play for his second TD of the game. He was stop ped trying to run the ball over for a two point PAT.

Ewing still had 10 minutes and 37 seconds to get the go ahead score, but it was thwa arted by PHS which managed to play possession ball when it had to. So successful were the Little Tigers that they had the ball for 40 plays in the second half to 12 for Ewing.

Ewing's only offensive weap on was Horner, passing to his t 3 end, Ken White In Ewing last chance with a minute and a half to go, Horn r went to the well once too often his in tended pass to White down field was intercepted by Rossi PHS then ran out the clock.

PHS dominated the statistics, running up 11 first downs to four for Ewing and outrushing the losers, 185 yards to 41. It did not give up the ball once on fumbles while Ewing fumbled it away three times. Rossi, Parker and Jackson ac counted for all the PHS ground game.

But, it was the paradox of dominating the game and still being in danger of losing it right up to the final minute and a half that had Wood and his staff shaking their heads and biting their nails. On sev eral occasions, Bill Cirullo, a nonplused PHS coach, shooted as he paced up and down. "What's going on out there?" Princeton better find the answer to that question by Saturday.

TWO VOTES FOR THE AMERICAN LEAGUE: Dan Tamasi (right) picks Minnesota to win the World Series, while Joe Baldino likes Baltimore. With the addition of the five-game league playoffs, it's getting harder than ever to pick the eventual series winner but a dozen respondents have a go at it below. Top favorite is Cincinnati with five votes, followed by Baltimore with four. (Staff Photo)

Question Of The Week

Question: What two teams do you think will wind up in the World Series and who do you pick to win the Series?

Where asked: Around town.

Dan Tamasi, 229 Terhune Road, Princeton letter carrier: Minnesota and Pittsburgh. I pick Minnesota. I'm an American League fan — a Yankee fan from way back — so I have to stick with the American League. I say the Twins in seven; it'll go all the way. Minnesota has the power, of course, but on top of that they have a fine fielding infield and good relief pitching.

Joe Baldino, 571 Ewing Street, employee of R. F. Johnson, electrical contractor: Baltimore and Cincinnati. Baltimore will win the series in five — better pitching staff and better defense.

Tony Pirone, 16 Hillside Avenue, bartender: Cincinnati and Baltimore. I pick Cincinnati with their hitting to win in six games. Everybody thinks pitching is the whole game, especially in a short series, but I think the hitters have taken over a big part — and Cincinnati has the best hitting club in the majors.

Dave Britton, Trenton, Princeton letter carrier: Baltimore and Pittsburgh. I think Baltimore will win it mainly because Baltimore is due. They've won the last two or three years and have come close in the series but something's always happened. They've got the best team in baseball, no doubt about it . . . but this thing about the Colts, the Bullets and the Birds always choking . . . something has got to break it and I think the Orioles can do it. I think they'll beat Pittsburgh pretty handily . . . in five games.

Fletcher Turner, Pennington, advertising and clerk at Cox's Store, 182 Nassau Street: Based on what's happened in the past, I think Cincinnati will win in the National League and Baltimore in the American. In the series, I like Cincinnati in six. I think Cincinnati has the hitters . . . an all-around ball club. They're stronger in every way except possibly shortstop. They have a terrific outfield and the world's best catcher. Palmer's an awfully good pitcher, but overall I think Baltimore is getting a little old.

Larry McHugh, West Windsor, sales clerk, Princeton Clothing Company: It's going to be Minnesota and Pittsburgh even though everybody is probably saying Baltimore and Cincinnati. I'll say the series will go to six games with Minnesota winning. You have to go with the Twins' batting, you have to go with those batting averages.

Charles Simone, Princeton-Kingston Road, treasurer, Hutlits Shoes: Cincinnati and Baltimore. You always are supposed to go with pitching in a series and Baltimore has the better pitching staff but I pick Cincinnati to win the series in five games. I like their hitting over Baltimore's pitching.

John Blackton, manager of Center Stationers, Princeton Shopping Center: Cincinnati and Baltimore. Baltimore will win it in five. Baltimore has the sounder pitching staff by far and is a phenomenal hitting team in the clutch. That's what did it all year. Cincinnati has been sporadic, even though it's won a lot. When it comes to the close games, the Reds can't win. And they've let down — they've won only three. I think, of their last eleven. This time, Baltimore has kept their starters in rotation, they haven't let up. They've kept their momentum.

Tim Desmond, Laurel Road, Kingston, sales clerk, Brophy's Shoes: I think Cincinnati will go all the way, they'll beat Baltimore in the series in six. Why Cincinnati? They hitting for one thing. Another is that they are probably the best rested team. The only disadvantage may be in their pitching staff as opposed to Baltimore's.

Harry Wyckoff, Trenton, sales clerk for Harry Ballot, 20 Nassau; Baltimore and Pittsburgh. In the series, Baltimore in five games. Baltimore has three 20 game winners in Palmer, McNally and Cuellar. Pittsburgh doesn't even have one! Three 20 game winners; that's a tremendous staff; they'll overpnwer Pittsburgh's hitting. And Baltimore is a good hitting club, too.

Lew Ferrara, owner of University Barber Shop, Palmer Square: Cincinnati and Baltimore. I think Cincinnati with its hitting has the better team. I think Cincinnati will get three in a row, let Baltimore win one, and then finish them off.

Martin Lombardo, 329 Nassau Street, co ordinator for National Youth Activities, Multiple Sclerosis Society: Pittsburgh and Minnesota and I hope Pittsburgh wins the series. They've come a long way while the pressure's been on. I think it will go seven games.

PDS AT PENNINGTON

After Big Win Over George.

For the first time in nearly a season and a half the Princeton Day football team put together all the ingredients for a victory and came up with just exactly that — a 15-12 triumph over favored George School last Saturday. The win broke a ten game losing streak stretching back to November, 1963 when the Panthers whipped Friends School, 48-7.

The upset should give the Blue and White some momentum going into Friday's contest with Pennington Prep. The teams appear fairly evenly matched, and, as in most cases, the team wanting the game the most should get it. Penning ton opened with an 18-0 shutout of Englewood School, but was blanked 12-0, last Saturday by Morristown Prep.

It provided PDS with one of several of its close losses last year, nipping the Panthers 14-12, on the strength of two extra points. Kickoff is set for 2 p.m. at Pennington.

If PDS can come up with the kind of hard-nosed determination that it showed against George, it should be able to take the Red Raiders. The Panthers' running attack, largely responsible for both scores, was impressive, helped by strong blocking in the line. The defense did the job when it had too, and showed "tremendous pursuit," in the words of coach Dan Barren.

Three key line up changes made by Barren also made a big difference. Tight end and co-captain Terry Booth was moved to a running back. Kirk Moore, switched into the line, and Paul Funk put in Booth's end position.

After a scoreless opening period, PDS started in earnest toward the George goal line. Quarterback Peter McCandless sent Booth inside and Dave Claghorn, outside, for consistent yardage, and passed for some key first downs.

On third and inches from the six, Moore and center Ted Vogt opened up a nice hole for McCandless and he romped through for six points. Booth kicked PDs's first extra point in a long time for a 7-0 lead.

BOOTH ON THE MOVE: After taking the handoff from quarterback Peter McCandless (7), PDS co-captain Terry Booth broke away from this potential tackler for a good gain. Switched from tight end to his old position at running back, Booth and David Claghorn provided the major part of the Panthers' impressive running attack in a 15-12 upset win over George School. (Photo by Paul Lyman)

George wasted no time getting the touchdown back. With Ron Hancox carrying for most of the yardage, the visitors mounted their own scoring drive. Quarterback Tony Jackson took the ball over. The Panthers still led, 7-6, however when co-captain Jake Jacobell nailed Hancox behind in the line in the try for a two point conversion.

PDS threatened again before the half ended, getting to George's nine yard line with just seconds left, but McCandless's passes either fell incomplete or were dropped.

PDS got in trouble immediately at the start of the second half, when an on-side kick off that only went a couple of yards, gave George the ball on the PDS 42. On the first play from scrimmage, Larry Potter broke through the center of the line and went all the way. George again went for two points, but Jackson's pass was knocked down.

PDS got down inside George's 10, but fumbled away another chance to score, and was stopped there another time. However the Panthers' made their own break when Tony Dale intercepted a Hancox pass and ran it to the George 12. A penalty carried it to the five. Booth hit to the two, and Claghorn carried it over. On a fake kick Claghorn passed to George Mayzell for two points.

George still had plenty of time, and began to move the ball on the ground. Down inside the PDS 30, the Panthers were called for piling on and George had a first down inside the 10. A run gained about four and on second down McCandless saved the victory when a pass on the end

Barren at first hated the win to fewer costly mistakes on every part and the pursuit shown on defense. Ron Hancox gained virtually every time he carried, but he was never able to break out for long runs that might have turned the game around. The PDS secondary did a superb job in coming up fast to cover the run.

The win, which evened the Panthers record at 1-1, avenged last year's 22-0 shutout administered by George, in the first meeting between the two schools. PDS is now 1-0 in Penn-Jersey League play.

"If there was heaven on earth it was our locked room Saturday," Barren commented. "Maybe the next win won't be as long a time coming."

HUN AT GEORGE SCHOOL

After 49-0 Farragut Win.

Among other things, October usually brings perfect football weather but it is doubtful if George School will enjoy its upcoming weekend with the Hun football team.

Hun will travel to Newtown, Pa. to take on the Cougars, who had the unhappy distinction, to be the team that ended Princeton Day School's 10 game losing streak. The Saturday kickoff is at 2:30.

Hun's 49-0 brutalizing of Admiral Farragut last week may set off a clamor by George School and other members of the Penn-Jersey League to have the Hun squad cut up, packed in concrete cartons and dumped in the Atlantic. Clearly, the unit that coach Dave Leete has assmbled is too dangerous to have around.

Against the future admirals, the Hun defense was paralyzing. It always has been the foundation upon which Hun has built its unbeaten string, which now stretches across three years and 27 games. But against Farragut it reached its acme: minus 64 yards offense; not a single first down the entire game.

PETRONE POWER: Princeton's Jack Petrone scored three touchdowns and rushed for 220 yards to lead Hun to a 49-0 victory over Admiral Farragut Saturday at Toms River.

435 Yards On Offense, Match that performance with the biggest offense that Hun has generated in some time — 435 yards total, seven touchdowns — and you have the equivalent of a Pearl Harbor for the admirals. By the time reserve halfback Greg Ralfalski had scored Hun's seventh TD in the final period, Leete had lost his only battle of the day: trying to hold the score down.

The Hun touchdown litany: Pete Jones, first quarter, 20 yards out on a burst up the middle; Jack Petrone, 30-yard pass from quarterback Alan Chalifoux; Petrone, 44 yard romp; Petrone, again, on an 80-yard punt return, all in the second quarter; Jones and fullback Guadagno on runs of seven and five yards in the third period; Ralfalski in the fourth.

Petrone, son of Township Police Sgt. Jack Petrone, was the catalyst that ignited the Hun offense. On the 435 yards amassed by Hun, 361 were gained on the ground. Of these, Petrone accounted for 220. In a superb individual performance, in two games, he has rushed for 329 yards.

Two hundred fifty-pound Hun guard Greg Cortina led the defense with eight tackles. A half-dozen more Red and Black defensemen had seven each. Dennis Skrajewski and Jim Marden intercepted Farragut passes, while Hun's Chalifoux was two-for-three for 44 yards.

HAC COASTS TO WIN

In Flag Football. George Packard fired two touchdown passes to lead the Harrison Athletic Club to a 30-12 triuph over the Merry-Go-Round Bar in Mercer County Flag Football action Sunday.

Greg Spady caught one of the scoring passes to complete a 70-yard play and Edgar Riddick caught the other. Mike McCullogh threw a 60-yard pass to Spady on a flanker reverse for a third touchdown, and John Saladino and Riddick scored on runs of 80 and five yards, respectively. John Smithson highlighted the team's defensive play, blocking three passes.

In other games, around the league, Ivy Inn nipped Dolci's, 6-0; Ewing Giants ripped Center Sports, 27-0, and Monarchs dumped Joe & Lena's 26-14.

WINNERS NAMED

In Lake Carnegie Races. In races Sunday on Carnegie Lake, Jim McPherson finished first and Tom Hunting ton second among the six competing 14 foot sloops.

In the Penguin class, five boats racing, Ed Metcalf finished first and Bill O'Donnell second. Among 10 Sunfish boats, Bob Holzman captured first place with 53.5 points. Walt Gibson (40.8) was second and Jack Kunz (39.5) third.

TOM LEDERER FIRST

In 5-Mile Bike Race. The last 5 mile race of the season sponsored by the Century Road Club on the Kingston course, was won by Tom Lederer of Princeton University. His time was 13 minutes, 16 seconds.

Dan Hawley, also of Princeton University, finished second just two seconds slower than Lederer. Rounding out the first five were Rett Campbell (13:30), Brian Woodside (14:45) and Barry Aronson (14:46).

BOWLING NOTES

Scores Still Low. New pins with their flatter bottoms, the summer layoff — whatever the excuse, scores at the Princeton Recreation Lanes this fall have been consistently low in all leagues.

Last week, the usually productive A league had a mere pair of 200 games, 203s by John Fugill and Tony Amalfitano. Bill Whatley's 211 was the only 200 game in the Tri-County Firemen's League, although Bud Reading and Rich Rodefield came close with 198s.

The Nassau League had four 200 games, two by Vince Tufano of first place Grover Lumber. He rolled 204-219 — his latter the high game of the week. Unprecedented. Fred Goeke had 210 and Albert Petrella, 200.

Tied for second place in the standings, four points back of Grover, are Kingston Wine and Liquor and Princeton Aviation. Hunt & Augustine has 16.

In the A League, Antlers and Rialto Barber Shop are tied for first with 18 points each. Staats Electric has 14. A similiar situation exists in the Firemen's League where No. 3 and Rocky Hill share first place with 14 points apiece. Dutch Neck and

FUND ESTABLISHED

$2.5 Million for Princeton. A $2.5 million endowment fund, "The Sidney Rheinstein Fund for the Advancement of Social Justice and International Understanding," has been established at Princeton University under the will of the late Mr. Rheinstein, a member of the Princeton Class of 1907.

Income will be used to provide scholarship aid for qualified but disadvantaged students from this country and abroad and the purchase of library materials in the field of international and Regional Studies. Three-fifths of the income will be applied to scholarships and fellowships and will support from ten to 20 students annually, depending on their degree of financial need.

Mr. Rheinstein, a Wall Street broker for more than half a century, died in 1968 at age 81.

In announcing the grant before an on-campus conference of Princeton alumni leaders from all parts of the country, Dr. Robert F. Goheen, President of the University, stated: "It has become increasingly clear that a key element in the eventual solution of the problems of the disadvantaged people of this nation and the world is high quality education for those among them with leadership potential.

"For this reason and because of the concern Princeton shared with the late Mr. Rheinstein for social justice," Dr. Goheen went on to say, "we are seeking out and encouraging applications from promising and qualified young men and women who, for lack of money, would not normally be able to attend the University. We are also motivated by the desire to provide all our students with the important educational experience of close contact with men and women of other races and cultures."

Ascribing commensurate importance to that portion of the fund set aside for the purchase of books and periodicals on international and regional affairs, President Goheen pointed out that Princeton has placed considerable emphasis on regional studies since the establishment of a program in Oriental Languages and Literature in the 1920's. At present, Princeton has leading pro-

The gals aren't leveling as many pins, either. Carol List of first-place Rocky Hill Inn and Elayne Masterson of second place Bucci Builders each rolled a 171 — high for the week Elayne added a 165.

Between 160 and 164 were Lillian Burrough, Dot Thorsell, Mary Bartolino, Dot Wheeler, Betty Kreiben, Ruth Bonin and Louise Fugill.

Rocky Hill Inn and Bucci are one two in the standings with 18 and 16 points. Three others have 14.

USED CAR MART TIED

By Swift's Diner. Swift's Colonial Diner No. 2 tied Used Car Mart last week for first place in the Princeton Women's Bowling League. Each has 22 points.

Tied for second at 18 apiece are Hamilton Supply Co. and Spinners. Swift's Colonial Diner No. 1 has 16. The high team game of 691 was fashioned by Used Car Mart; Swift's No. 1 claimed the high team series of 1889.

Marilyn Silvester of Used Car Mart rolled the high single game of 225, followed by Hamilton's Mary Hurlburt who had a 192. Others: Pat Brown of Diner No. 2 189-172; Carole Ramey of Diner No. 1 180, and Ginny Millington of Will's Shell, 172.

TOWNSHIP WINS AGAIN

In Police Golf Event. Beating by the Borough this year on the pistol range and basketball court, Township police gained some measure of satisfaction when they captured a golf tournament held Monday at Springdale among the Borough, Township and Campus Security police departments. The victory was the second in a row for the Township; another will enable them to retire the cup.

Taking the five lowest scores from each team, the Township edged the campus police by six strokes, 458 to 464. It was no contest as far as the Borough was concerned; it failed to field a complete team. Low scorer among the three who played was Doug Watson who shot a 97.

Low man for all three teams was the Township's Mike Kopliner. He had a fine 81. Others who figured in the Township victory were Sgt. Mike List (89), Ptl. Frank Boccanfuso (95), Ptl. Dave Cromwell (96), and Sgt. Anthony Nini (97).

James Kopliner of the campus police fashioned the second lowest score of 85. A former sergeant on the Borough force, he also had the longest drive and the closest shot to the pin. The four next lowest scores by the campus team were 88 by Rufus Jones, 96 by Al Terry, 97 for Russ Shangle and 98 for Harry Kahny.

"HERE TO THERE"

Held at Pike Brook Club. A "Here to There" tournament, in which only the strokes needed to get from tee to green are counted, was held last week by the Ladies Nine Holers of Pike Brook Country Club.

Winners in Flight A were Mrs. Raymond Kelpin of Somerset and Mrs. William Grander of Belle Mead. Flight B: Mrs. Thomas Keneally of Middlebush and Mrs. Howard Konrad of Somerville, and Flight C: Mrs. Peter Grimm of Princeton and Mrs. Paul Miele of Bound Brook.

TITLE WON AGAIN

By Mrs. Little, Mrs. MacDonald. Mrs. Gwenda Little and Mrs. Yvonne MacDonald successfully defended their West Windsor women's doubles championship in the West Windsor tennis tournaments, winning a hard-fought battle over Mrs. Fran Novelli and Mrs. Jean Polarolo, 6-3, 6-2.

by defeating Mrs. Marg Frith. They had reached the finals and Mrs. Roberta Borden, Mrs. Novelli and Mrs. Polarolo beat Mrs. Mary Henry and Mrs. Barbara Martindale to gain the finals.

A pair of 6-3 sets gave the boys singles championship to Bill Adam over Kevin Little. On his way to the title Adam overcame Ron Aldridge and then Tim Nuding 3-6, 6-2, 6-2. Nuding had beaten Jeff Boodley 6-1, 6-3, to reach the semi-finals.

Little advanced to the finals with victories over Lance Marshall, 6-1, 6-4; and then an upset win over the 1969 singles champion, Dave Fry, 6-2, 6-3.

DATA PLANT PLANNED

For West Windsor by NCR. Banks in New Jersey and New York will receive faster computer information on some 1,800,000 accounts after a proposed $1.5 million data processing center is erected in West Windsor Township by the National Cash Register Company.

The West Windsor Township Planning Board cleared the way last week when it granted site plan approval. The proposed 20,000 square-foot building would be built on a 10-acre site off Old Trenton Road, near the Buxton Country Shops. Stanley White, real estate agent for the firm, said the center would employ about 50 people on a round the-clock basis.

Designed as a replacement of a New York center, the new data facility will provide "online" computer information about individual accounts such as immediate deposit and balance through direct telephone dialing.

Improved telephone service is one of the reasons given by Mr. White for the move to West Windsor. Another is the existence of a pool of computer oriented workers in the area.

To meet contractual obligations with banks, NCA hopes to complete construction by February, Mr. White commented. A building permit is expected to be granted this week if the Township Health Department approves septic tank plans.

TRADING BALLOONS FOR BOTTLES: Conrad Maarschalk and his crew plucked three balloons from the sea 38 miles off shore last week, and found each contained a gift certificate redeemable at a Princeton Shopping Center Store. Ben Levine, owner of Claridge Wine and Liquor, helps Mr. Maarschalk redeem one of the certificates. The balloons had been launched from the Center as a prelude to its 16th anniversary celebration.

REWARD

For information leading to the capture of GIANT GARDEN SLUGS. These animals provide material for basic research on the nervous system. We can use only one type of slug which is distinguished by its grey color with black strips and spots. Adult slugs may be 4-6 inches long. If you collect and deliver slugs, we will pay $15 per pound which is about 25c per large slug. We would be glad to hear of locations where these animals can be found. If you have information, questions, or slugs call 452-3831 or 924-4025, or come to Room 1B, Guyot Hall, Princeton University.

SUBCONTRACTS AWARDED

To General Devices. The Telemetry Division of General Devices, manufacturer of telemetry equipment, is the recipient of two Navy subcontracts in excess of $100,000.

Murray Medvin, GDI's General Manager, has announced that the Princeton firm was selected to supply telemetering commutators and multicoders for the Navy's Sparrow Missile and Mark 48 Target Torpedo Programs.

Mr. Medvin added that these subcontracts would help make 1970 a banner year for GDI's Telemetry Division. Bookings for the first three quarters of 1970 are now 13% ahead of all of 1969, and the backlog as of September 30, is double that of a year ago.

BALLOONS AT SEA

Bring Gifts oo Land. Three balloons found almost 40 miles off the New Jersey coast by a sloop captain proved to have a lot more than just hot air.

Sailing home from Newport in a rough sea last Tuesday, Captain Conrad Maarschalk of Clifton spotted a cluster of bright color, tacked over to investigate and found three balloons with gift certificates from Princeton Shopping Center. Sixteen such balloons had been sent up the previous day from the Shopping Center, more than 80 miles away to launch the center's 16th anniversary.

Capt. Maarschalk's fiber glass sloop, The Mara, was 38 nautical miles off the coast, due east of Manasquan inlet, when the balloons were sighted. He reported later he thought the colored objects might be a lobster pot which had broken from its mooring. Capt. Maarschalk offered the three gift certificates to his three crew members. They suggested the certificates be used to buy items for a celebration aboard the sloop and for some new gear.

The former owner of the Clifton Nurseries, now retired, Capt. Maarschalk and his wife came down to the Shopping Center this week. They purchased boat gear at Center Sports, liquor at Claridge Wine Liquor, and lunched at Chan's Restaurant. They may return. At this point they are in line for the special gift certificate to be awarded to the person finding a balloon at the farthest distance.

Obituaries

Dr. Margaret L. F. Thorp, 78, of 428 Nassau Street, died October 2 in the Merwick unit of Princeton Hospital. She was a writer and the wife of Dr Willard Thorp, professor of English emeritus at Princeton University.

Mrs. Thorp wrote nine books and numerous articles. Among her books were "Charles Kingsley, 1819 1875" published by the Princeton University Press in 1937, "America at the Movies," a popular film study published by the Yale University Press in 1939; "Female Persuasion: Six Strong Minded Women" (1949), "Neilson of Smith" (1956), "The Literary Sculptors" (1965) and "Saran Orne Jewett" (1966).

Born in East Orange, she was the daughter of Wilson and Margaret Farrand. Her father was headmaster of Newark Academy and a trustee of Princeton. She was graduated from Smith College in 1914 and served for a time on the staff of "The Independent," under the editorship of Hamilton Holt.

In 1917 she served in France for the American Fund for French Wounded One of her duties was to edit the fund's weekly bulletin, whose contributors included Alice B. Toklas. In he spare time, she worked in the canteens and as an unofficial nurse's aid in several hospitals. In March 1918, she transferred to the American Red Cross where she continued to do publicity work until after the Armistice. She was also a special correspondent to the Newark Evening Times.

From 1921 to 1929, Dr. Thorp was an assistant professor and publicity director at Smith College. The college granted her master's degree in 1926 and in 1957 awarded an honorary doctorate of letters. In 1929 she went to Yale to earn her Ph.D. In June 1930 she married Willard Thorp, then an assistant professor at Princeton. Yale conferred her doctorate in 1931.

There are no other immediate survivors. A private service was held with interment in Princeton Cemetery. Arrangements were made by the Mather Funeral Home.

John Kianka, 77, of Moore's Mill Road, Pennington, died October 1 in the Hunterdon Medical Center. He was a retired iron worker.

Born in Czechoslovakia, Mr. Kianka lived in the Pennington area for more than 35 years. He was also a former employee of the Gas Construction Company of Trenton. He was a member of the Slovak Jednota, and of the United Auto Workers Union.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary L. Kianka; seven sons, John of Long Island, Andrea, Mike, Joseph and William, all of Hopewell, Paul of Willow Grove, Pa., and Stephen of Dayton, O.; two grandchildren, two great grandchildren, a brother, Michael of Trenton, and a sister, Ilia, in Czechoslovakia.

Requiem mass was celebrated in St. Alphonsus Church. Interment was in Highland Cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Louise Purdum, 53, of Blawenburg, died September 30 in Hunterdon Medical Center. She was the wife of Rufus Purdum.

Born in Ohio, Mrs. Purdum lived in the Blawenburg area for 22 years. She was employed by the Blawenburg Post Office.

Also surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Peggy Fisher of Trenton and Miss Judy Purdom of Blawenburg; two sons Richard of London, England, and James of Blawenburg; four grandchildren and four brothers, Harold, Robert, Edward and William Reed, all of Ohio.

The service will be held in Plain City, O., with interment in Westley Chapel Cemetery there.

Mrs. Zenobra Gibson, 83, of Princeton Nursing Home, died October 4 at the home. She was a member of the Union Baptist Church.

Surviving are three grandchildren, eight great grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Evelyn Williams and Mrs. Mattie Rayford, both of Florida.

Mrs. Lydia Glereczynski, 71, of Montgomery Road, Hopewell, died October 2 in the Maple Manor Nursing Home, Langhorne, Pa.

Surviving are a brother, Felix Probohinski, and a sister, Mrs. Peter Mashlykin of Zion.

A family service was held. Interment was in Vineland Cemetery.

Wilmer Moore, 86, of 18 West Broad Street, Hopewell, died October 3 in Mercer Hospital. A retired banker, he was formerly with Hopewell National Bank.

Mr. Moore was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Hopewell, the Sons of the Revolution, Hopewell Lodge 155 F & AM, and a charter member of the Roundabout Club.

His wife, Mrs. Mary B. Moore, survives him.

A private service was held, with interment in Old School Baptist Cemetery, Hopewell.

French Orchestra Disappoints in Concert Here

The 1970-71 concert season began officially with the arrival of the first Series II concert Monday night at McCarter.

For the first time in this reviewer's memory, Series II concert-goers were offered a full-sized symphony orchestra as part of their subscription series. L'Orchestre National Francais, conducted by Jean Martinon, were the featured guests and their Princeton hosts heard a program which consisted of Schumann's "Symphony No. 4 in D Minor", R. Strauss's "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks", "Les Offrandes Oubliees" by the contemporary French master, Olivier Messiaen, and "Le Mer" by Debussy.

With the exception of the Messiaen (probably represented here by one of his very early essays in the art of the symphonic poem,) all of the works performed were established masterpieces of the symphonic repertory. The Schumann work, though rhetorical and under developed at times, is unquestionably a work of poignant beauty and one of the underrated scores in the symphonic field.

The Strauss composition is perhaps one of the most ingenius musical creations by man, past or present. It is a work of infinite charm, variety and wit.

It possesses the craft of a master technician, who in musical means, manipulates with consummate skill a single motivic fragment, (the "leit motif" of the piece) in an incredible assortment of transformations, many times in counterpoint with one another. The music is compact, constantly driving, always arresting and thoroughly enjoyable.

It is an immensely difficult score to perform and this fact was all the more apparent by Mr. Martinon's inability to guide his forces through the 20 minute composition without numerous pitfalls, most notably in the brass and woods. Intonation, wanting in the second movement of the Schumann. (The French reedy sound never appealed to these ears) was superceded by inaccuracies in rhythm in the Strauss.

Perhaps the biggest flaw in the orchestra's performance was in the general balance between the sections. Mr. Martinon has conducted in McCarter Theatre before. At that time, he appeared to achieve a far more authentic orchestral sound from the Chicago Symphony than he did Monday night with the French National Orchestra.

For one thing, Mr. Martinon allowed the percussion too much liberty with the dynamics. They simply played too loudly, at times obliterating everything in its path. Even in lesser places, in the Debussy "La Mer", for example, entrances by members of the percussion section were offensively too pronounced. As for the particular timbres in the brass section, Mr. Martinon appears to encourage the most nasal and at times, quasi "salon style" effect which reminds one of saxophones instead of horns and trombones.

The Debussy work should have provided the audience with the best playing, but alas it received the most lackluster of readings. The repetition of motives and phrases is a formula that Debussy adhered to in many of his compositions. This is a noble discovery the student makes in the "analysis" class at the conservatory, but it should not be so pronounced in performance as to destroy the syntax of the music. The score, built up upon mosaic fragments from Debussy's creative genius must develop into a whole unit. Mr. Martinon achieved some marvelous things with respect to these ideas in the second movement, but in the outer movements, he took too many ritards while drawing out the woodwind solos, thereby holding back the pace of the music.

The Messiaen work was a disappointment, to say the least. This man has achieved many wonderful worlds of sonority in his recent scores, but "Les Offrandes Oubliees" obviously is not one of them. Still, some beautifully wrought string sonarities heard at the beginning of the tone poem offered a hint of the mature composer.

BARENBOIM

With Beethoven. Observing the 200th anniversary of Beethoven's birth, like everyone else, pianist, Daniel Barenboim will give an all-Beethoven recital at McCarter Theatre Tuesday, October 20 at 8:30 p.m.

The 28 year-old Israeli pianist has chosen five piano sonatas: in D Major, Op. 28 ("Pastural"); B flat Major, Op. 22; g minor, Opt. 49, No. 1; G Major, Op. 49, No. 2 and F minor, Op. 57, the famous "Appassionata."

Mr. Barenboim's wife is the cellist Jacqueline du Pre, who will appear in Princeton in January.

ORCHESTRA TO PLAY

Concert Next Friday. The Friends of Music at Princeton will present the Princeton University Orchestra's first concert of the 1970-71 season at Alexander Hall at 8:30 p.m. next Friday, October 16.

The Orchestra will be conducted by Prof. Peter Westergaard and Gilbert I. Levine '71, with Shirley Sudock, mezzo soprano, and John Bogart '72, bass, soloists. The program will offer Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony"; Mozart Concert Arias; "Des Knaben Wunderhorn" by Mahler and "Noises, Sounds and Sweet Airs" by Peter Westergaard.

Shirley Sudock studied at Barnard College, the Vienna Academy Opera, The Salzburg Mozarteum, and the Zurich Conservatory, where she was a student of Ria Ginster. Her most recent appearance in Princeton was last March when she and Blake Stern sang Wolf's Italienisches Liederbuch.

John Bogart, a junior at Princeton University, won the Princeton University Orchestra's Concerto Competition last winter. Mr. Bogart, a bass of considerable brilliance, was soloist with the Princeton University Glee Club in the Brahms' "Requiem" in April. Mr. Bogart is now solnist at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York.

Peter Westergaard became conductor of the Princeton University Orchestra when he joined the faculty of the Department of Music in 1968.

The concert at Alexander Hall is open to the public, admission free.

News Of The CHURCHES

SERVICES SET

For Yom Kippur. The Kol Nidre service of Yom Kippur will be held at 6 p.m. this Friday in the Princeton Jewish Center, conducted by Rabbi Hershell Matt and Cantor Simon Gewirtz. Saturday's observance begins at 9 a.m. and concludes with Shofar at 7:15 p.m. The Men's Club will host a break-the-fast buffet following Shofar.

Hillel Foundation at Princeton University has announced a change in its schedule for Yom Kippur. The orthodox services will be held at 6 p.m. Friday and at 10 on Saturday in Murray Dodge Hall. Liberal and conservative services will be in 101 McCormick Hall at 8 p.m. on Friday and 10 on Saturday.

Yavneh House of Princeton, 46 Wiggins Street, will hold the Kol Nidre service at 6 p.m., followed by a morning service at 9 in the music room of Murray Dodge Hall.

DR ALYEA TO SPEAK

On Laymen's Sunday. Dr. Hubert N. Alyea, professor of chemistry at Princeton University, will be the preacher at the 9 and 11 a.m. services for Laymen's Sunday this week in First Presbyterian Church. His sermon title is "Fact, Fiction and Faith."

A member of the Princeton Class of 1925, Dr. Alyea is an elder and chairman of the worship-music committee of the session. Noted as one of Princeton's master teachers, Dr. Alyea has given lecture-demonstrations in some 60 countries on "Atomic Energy: Weapon for Peace" and "Lucky Accidents and Great Discoveries and the Prepared Mind."

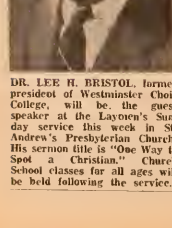
He is presently developing "Armchair Chemistry," whereby the large college lecture hall is converted into a chemistry laboratory, with each student carrying on experiments on the writing arm of his chair.

Dr. Alyea's lectures and writings are widely regarded in the field of chemical education on the international level.

WOMEN TO REPORT

On Purdue Meeting. The women of the New Brunswick Presbyterial will meet at 8 p.m. this Monday in St. Andrew's Church to hear a report, "Purdue Panorama," on the National Triennial Meeting of Presbyterian Women at Purdue, Ind.

Members who will present the program are Mrs. William Bodine, Mrs. Arthur Byers Jr., Mrs. David Hay, Mrs. F. Hogh Laffiton, Mrs. Lefferts Loetscher, Mrs. Paul Pierson, Mrs. David S. Wert and Mrs. Donald E. Wolf. Refreshments will be served.



DR. LEE H. BRISTOL, former president of Westminster Choir College, will be the guest speaker at the Laymen's Sunday service this week in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. His sermon title is "One Way to Spot a Christian." Church School classes for all ages will be held following the service.

JOSEPH P. MOORE will speak on the topic, "Courage To Be" at 11 this Sunday in Witherspoon Street Presbyterian Church, marking Laymen's Sunday. Mr. Moore is assistant dean of students at Princeton University and a candidate for Princeton Borough Council.

The women of St. Andrews will hold a short meeting at 7:30 p.m. for the program.

Memorial Service

A memorial service for Mrs. Elizabeth Grier Hibben Scoon, 81, will be held at 4 p.m. on Saturday, October 17, in the Miles Chapel of First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. Donald M. Meisel will officiate.

Mrs. Scoon, who lived at 50 Wilson Road, died July 4 in the Merwick unit of Princeton Hospital. She was the widow of Dr. Robert Scoon and the daughter of the late President John Grier Hibben of Princeton University.

BULLETIN NOTES

A chicken dinner will be held this Saturday at the Morning Star Church of God in Christ, Birch Avenue. Doors open at noon, and the donation is $2. Arrangements may be made to have dinners delivered by calling 924-5478.

The 127 Homecoming for Zion Methodist Church will be held at 3 p.m. this Sunday, Rev. Allen George is pastor. The Homecoming is open to all.

Sunday brunches at First Presbyterian Church, an innovation last year, begin again this Sunday at 12:30 p.m. Guests this week will be missionaries, fraternal workers and foreign students who are at Princeton Seminary. The cost is $1.50 for adults; 50 cents for children under 10, not to exceed $3.50 per family.

A bagel and lox brunch is set for 11 on Sunday in the faculty lounge of the Engineering Quadrangle under the auspices of the Hillel Foundation. Two films will be shown: Abbie Hoffman's "Yippie" and "Sallah" with Ephraim Kishan.

At the Unitarian Church of Princeton, the Rev. Robert L. Cope will preach at 9 and 11. His topic is "How I Plan to Hijack This Church and Fly It to Zion."

CHANGES ANNOUNCED

In Westminster Administration. Four administrative changes have been made at Westminster Choir College during the summer.

James C. McKeever has been appointed Director of Development and Alumni Affairs. Mr. McKeever came to Westminster in 1960 as a member of the voice faculty, and in 1965 became Director of Alumni Affairs, Placement and Church Relations. As Director of Development Mr. McKeever is responsible for planning future campus expansion and coordinating fund raising activities for the College.

Steven P. Sharp will replace Mr. McKeever as Director of Placement and Church Relations. Mr. Sharp received degrees from Westminster in 1965 and 1967. Since that time he has been a full-time parish musician.

His main responsibility will be assisting students and alumni to find positions as church musicians and teachers. He will also act as liaison between the College and community churches.

Earl L. Cunningham has been appointed Director of Public Information, a new position created by The Board of Trustees. Mr. Cunningham comes to Westminster with a background in advertising and for the past five years has been teaching music in the Midwest.

David S. York who has been on the theory faculty of Westminster since 1946, has been appointed Director of Admissions.

REGISTRATION REQUIRED

For Refuse Collection. Garbage collectors and disposal site operators will not be allowed to operate after November 6 if they have not filed an application with the Public Utilities Commission. This warning, issued by William E. Ozzard, President of the PUC, has been directed to the industry itself and all municipalities and health authorities.

Mr. Ozzard indicated that he was issuing the warning because "the industry and the municipalities in the state have been on notice since last spring that new regulation will go into effect on November 6. If the collectors and dump site operators do not apply by the deadline, they will be prevented from operating and many municipalities will be faced with a health crisis. We are asking municipal officials and health authorities to cooperate in ensuring that all collectors in their area are registered in time."

Mr. Ozzard said that application forms are currently available from the PUC's office at 101 Commerce Street, Newark, and that additional copies of the application form will be available in the near future at the more than 300 disposal sites located throughout the state. He stated further that the dump sites will be policed as of November 6th to prevent any collector from entering if he has not filed for approval. State and local police will be asked to cooperate in preventing illegal operation by the collectors or disposal site operators.

LIBRARY PLANS PROGRAM

For Preschoolers. The public library will inaugurate a weekly storyhour series for preschool children on Wednesday, October 28. The sessions will be held Wednesday mornings at 10 through December 9.

Stories will include such favorites as Wanda Cag's, "Millions of Cats," Bruno Munari's, "Elephant's Wish," and Emmy Payne's, "Katy No Pocket." Limited space necessitates advance registration. Parents should register children aged 3½ to 5 at the children's department October 12-19.

REAL ESTATE

NORTH Princeton Township on a quiet wooded street, there is one of the most beautifully kept houses in town. With its light walls and rich dark floors, either antique or modern furniture will look its very best. There are two possible master bedrooms plus two more family bedrooms and 3½ baths. Charm plus value at $63,000

SOUTH in the Riverside area, we have the impossible, a beautiful building lot only a short hop from school and on a lovely quiet cul-de-sac at $25,000.

EAST to the Snowden Lane area, you will find the perfect hideaway or retirement house with a delightful sunny living room, separate panelled dining room, big bright kitchen and two bedrooms for $43,000.

WESTERN section of Princeton offers an unpretentious and very special colonial residence with all the latest in comfort. The living room and handsome library both open to a big brick floored screened porch overlooking a secluded, sunny garden. There are four bedrooms, three full baths and an enormous "living kitchen" with large garden window. $125,000

WHERE . . .

WHERE ELSE . . .

But at Country Antiques can you find . . .

A 19th Century inlaid small jewel box made of burled maple — possibly Edwardian — reminiscent of Louis XIV.

An early tin locomotive, about 1870.

A rare book "The Mariner's Chronicle" containing narratives of the "Most Remarkable Disasters at Sea," such as Shipwrecks, Fires and Famines — New Haven, 1834.

A Theodore Roosevelt letter — 1911, from the White House. A leading New York store charges $350 for a letter from Oyster Bay, not nearly so rare. Compare our price!

CAPES AND TREWS — an exclusive!

Authentic English University scarves.

Foubert — a French landscapist, a truly lovely oil of his fourth period (the Peaceful Interlude).

WOOD YOU BELIEVE!

Maybe we didn't spell it right, but we sure made it right. And right smack where it belongs — in the woods. This fantastic contemporary simply defies description. Strictly one of a kind, and incomparable from the word go. Ziggity-zag roof lines, exposed beamed ceilings, thermopane glass walls — the works. And functional as can be, with a large living room, and marble fireplace faced with brick travertine, dining room, very special and spacious kitchen, 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, study, game room, basement, 2 car garage. With all sorts of special features, such as cork floors, built-in bar, self cleaning oven, outside redwood deck — to mention only a few. In a picture-like setting in Princeton's Riverside, overlooking Lake Carnegie. $99,000

DELICIOUS, DELIGHTFUL, DECEPTIVE

Four bedroom Colonial Cape Cod, extremely well built and in excellent condition, set in the midst of gorgeous pine forest and many fruit-bearing trees. Three magnificent acres in nearby Montgomery Township, in a convenient location and yet bidden away behind luscious greenery. Good-sized living room with fireplace, kitchen, 2 bedrooms and bath all on first floor. Two more bedrooms plus bath on second floor. A screened porch off formal dining room is an enjoyable feature. $55,000

SLEEPING BEAUTY

Unique 1½ story frame, 2 bedroom, 2 bath home. Ideal for the retirement couple with time for just a bit of doing, who'd like to be different and away from the busy portion of town on their own small private, wooded estate. Step out from large panelled living room onto slate terrace — beyond which nature has provided a splendrous background of mature trees, comprising most of this little less than one acre property. Master bedroom has wall of glass overlooking woods, as does the brick floored family room. Priced at $59,000

A PRETTY LOT, A SET OF PLANS AND THOU

We have the lot. On a quiet side street in Princeton Borough, offering many trees and gentle slope to Harry's Brook — a building lot for fun and fancy. Building exactly what you want isn't so difficult and then you can be assured you have what you've dreamed about. Why settle for less? This is a good walk-to-town location and a good investment for only $17,500

PRINCETON AREA

EARLY AMERICAN ESTATE. 5 bedroom stone manor house restored to its original beauty of 235 years ago; restored in excellent taste, with 10 rooms, 3 full baths, 4 fireplaces (including one walk-in), a formal entry way, beautiful wide random width floors, a spacious screened porch that overlooks a large pond and pastoral scene beyond. The entire property simply radiates country peace, quiet and solitude as it's on 50 acres with a tenant house and large barn ideal for beef or horses. The owner offers interesting financing terms to the right man. $175,000

THE OWNER'S GONE, transferred, that is and he has just chopped the price for the second time on his Colonial home in the popular Pine Knoll section of Lawrence Twp. There's 8 rooms, 2½ baths, (4 bedrooms) with central air conditioning; this is your invitation to a wise buy for $41,900

THE ROCK OF GIBRALTER (new listing), that's what you can compare this superb 3 bedroom brick ranch to. It's in a very attractive country setting in South Hunterdon and offers 7 luxurious rooms, 2½ baths, a wide slate entrance foyer and plenty of large windows to enjoy the view. Over size 2 car garage. All this for $17,900

HANDYMAN INVESTOR, here's a tremendous opportunity for the investor that's looking for something to invest his time and money in, 3 unit apartment house on River Drive in Titusville (Hopewell Twp.). Each unit consists of 6 rooms and bath. Built on the banks of the Delaware River with riparian rights making it an ideal attraction to draw top rents, just reduced to $25,900 for a fast sale.

NEW LISTING. Very attractive 4 bedroom 2 bath Cape Cod between Pennington and Princeton that features a large living room with brick fireplace, formal dining room, modern kitchen, large breezeway and attached 2 car garage. Top value and immediate possession for $35,000

JUST REDUCED TO A BARGAIN, that's how we feel about this attractive low maintenance (aluminum siding) 3 bedroom rancher between Pennington and Princeton in a setting that's hard to duplicate. 111x117 lot; 7 rooms, 1½ baths, finished basement and a new low price of $38,900 Call now.

FOR THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, we offer this restored 9 room colonial that's just loaded with old charm, 3 full baths, 4 fireplaces, wide random floors, and outside there's a big stone terrace that overlooks the surrounding 23 acres that's complete with a babbling brook, stocked pond and a picturesque winding driveway that's lined with full grown blue spruce trees and there's a large 2 story barn for horse or beef. 189 Constitution Drive

Aptly appointed one and one third acres, this ten-room Colonial with its terrace pool and patio is a noteworthy new listing. The room-size, slate-floored entrance foyer affords access to an opulent step-down living room with decorous white marble faced fireplace and French doors opening to terrace. The gracious and commodious dining room accommodates both many guests and large furniture, its French doors also open to the terrace. The casual den, which is near the front entrance has a small fireplace which emits traditional warmth and conviviality; the "Queen-Size" kitchen has abundant storage and adjoining bright breakfast area.

The upper floor is served by main and auxiliary stairs and contains five bedrooms and three baths; master bedroom suite is separate and has a fireplace. Nat to be overlooked is the panelled game room, also with a fireplace; the room-size cedar closet; and the Sylvan Pool which is in the rear court.

You should see it now (soon may be too late).

Surround yourself with trees, grass and history.

There's plenty of all three on what may be the highest spot between New York and Philadelphia. Certainly it's one of the most historic, if not the most beautiful. ■ Just 15 homes will be custom built from your plans or ours abutting Greenacres Country Club Golf Course. Each will share in a sweep of common land . . . and in views and privacy all but vanished these days. ■ Isn't all this worth $50,000 or more?
